REVENUE RAISING MEASURES REACH HOUSE DECISION

House Wades Into Several Matters as Last Days of Session Wane

WAREHOUSE BILL OFF
Senate Acts on Fifty Measures In Chase of House to Clear Calendar

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, March 17.—Two revenue raising measures were approved by the house today, one calling for a two cent tax on gasoline and the other levying a state income tax on corporations, associations and partnerships. The gasoline tax measure carried in decisive fashion on roll call, the final vote being 75 to 14.

Final action on the corporation income tax bill will be taken Monday, the delay being granted because a number of members interested in the proposed law returning to their homes over the week-end. Filling out the measure broke down late today and it was advanced to the third reading.

Delay in reaching the two bills, the only important revenue raising measure of the session, virtually dissipated hope for adjournment of the session next Saturday. Observers took the view tonight that the legislature would be fortunate if it wound up its labor by April 1.

Five days must elapse after passage of revenue raising measures before adjournment can be taken. The gasoline tax bill will require at least three days to progress through the committee in the senate and then if passed promptly the five days required before adjournment would extend past next Saturday.

The big supply measures, the institution bill and departmental bill still remained to be acted upon as well as a host of other important species of legislation.

Income Tax Bill Gains
Opponents of the income tax bill gave ground grudgingly as the measure was advanced in the committee section by section.

Some twelve members made amendment drives on the bill but each proposed alteration was voted down.

Material increases in the present income tax statutes are proposed in the bill as a result of amendment attached by T. H. Wren of Oklahoma. As adopted by the house committee the schedule would be: One per cent on the first $10,000, two per cent on the next $15,000; three per cent on the next $25,000; four per cent on the next $50,000 and five per cent on all income in excess of $100,000.

Rates now in effect levy three-fourths of one per cent on the first $10,000; with a two per cent limit on incomes in excess of $50,000.

Dividends will be exempted when the net earnings are taxed under another amendment by Wren which was accepted. The bill provides that surety companies and national banks and telegraph companies would be excluded from the provision making the income tax law applicable to all corporations, associations, and partnerships.

An unsuccessful effort was made by W. Varnum of Seminole to obtain exemption of farm cooperative organizations. C. W. Miller of Hughes was ruled out of order when he jokingly offered an amendment to exclude farm labor reconstruction league.

Warehouse Problem Delayed
Final decision on the warehouse problem was delayed again today when it was agreed to report favorably both the Cordell bill and the Disney bill, leaving the question of which will be passed to final roll call. The Cordell bill, sponsored by the administration, holds a technical advantage over the W. E. Disney measure as it will be voted on first.

A state real estate court would be created without power to license dealers under a bill by John Miller, advanced in the committee and passed to the third reading.

The committee also advanced the senate joint resolution appropriating $31,432 to pay for diseased cattle slaughtered by direction of the state board of agriculture.

Anna Laskey, league member from Oklahoma county, failed for the third time to obtain consideration of a bill providing minimum wage law for women.

It was understood that administration leaders would confer over the week end in an attempt to reach a second agreement on a tentative adjournment date. Indications point to at least another two weeks work before a halt can be called.

Senate Acts on 50 Bills
Wading into a stack of business before it the senate today acted on nearly fifty measures. A score of bills were passed and others advanced.

Continuing at the pace set during the last three days the upper house would have its calendar cleaned up early next week.

EX-LAUNDRESS IS NOW OIL QUEEN

Mrs. Laura Lindcott.

Years ago Mrs. Laura Lindcott of Tonkawa, Okla., leased her farm to an oil concern because it was too poor to afford her a living. She worked as a laundress at $15 a week. Now she is receiving $5,000 a day from the oil output. She is sixty-five.

PROMINENTS HELD IN BOOZE PROBE

Jack Pickford And Sister Alleged Victims of Police Drag-net

(By the Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, March 17.—Revelation of "the most gigantic illegal liquor combination in the west" was forecast today as federal prohibition officers today after reviewing evidence which they state indicate that a number of prominent persons are patrons of the six alleged bootleggers caught in a raid Thursday night.

W. H. Doley, head of the southern California federal prohibition enforcement bureau, announced that the names of at least twenty persons prominent in Los Angeles, including motion picture actors, both men and women, in a list taken from two of the alleged bootleggers, but made public only those of Jack Pickford and Mrs. Allan Forrest, known professionally as Lottie Pickford, brother and sister of Mary Pickford.

Two checks signed by Pickford were in the possession of the two accused men, one of the alleged bootleggers admitting that he had made two sales of liquor to the actor.

Doley summoned Pickford to his office to question him concerning "certain matters," officers said, but when the actor arrived with his attorneys the interview failed. Pickford later announced that he was willing to give officers or the federal grand jury which is expected to take charge of the matter within two weeks a statement whenever desired.

Bergdoll Was Hero—Teacher Believes

(By the Associated Press)
NEW ORLEANS, March 17.—Al Johnson is wrestling champion; Francis Scott Key, a woman who wrote poems; Boob McNutt was quoted as the heavyweight champion, and the trade name of a widely known food product was named the wife of a character in the replies of members of the faculty of Newcomb college, a young woman's educational institution in their replies in an "intelligence test" submitted to them yesterday by the senior class. The students recently had undergone several examinations to determine their knowledge of everyday subjects and nestled at the results they challenged the faculty to undergo a similar test. Twenty-three of the 45 instructors were "game" and the results of the written examination held yesterday and made public today was little less than startling.

Sequels were described as a variety of fish; brilliantine was declared to be a preparation "that young ladies put in their eyes to make them shine"; the trade name of a cosmetic was declared to be the name of a cabaret while another professor said it was a character referred to in the Bible. Atlas was declared to be a movie actor; Mr. Gallaher and Mr. Sheen in the transfer business in New Orleans while another instructor dubbed them a version of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Grover Cleveland Bergdoll was given two identities. One professor said he was a world war hero, and another that he was a "democratic statesman." Marachino the cherry "was a premier of Russia before the war." "Filet Mignon was declared to be an opera by Tuccini." "Lot was the name in the Bible associated with salty wife." "Picking cherries," the name given a certain dance by the younger set was defined as "gathering fruit" by all but one of the instructors. She said it was a "slang term for petting."

IRISH MARCH IN PEACE PARADE

No Disturbance Results In St. Patrick Day Affair In New York

NEW YORK, March 17.—3,200 members of the police department detailed to prevent possible clashes between Irish free staters and republicans sympathizers guarded some 8,000 marchers in the annual St. Patrick's parade through Fifth avenue late today.

The nearest thing to a disturbance was created at 42nd street when an aged woman elbowed her way through the crowd and shouted: "Ow ye dirty robbers."

The resulting laughter disgusted her and she moved on.

Several republicans bearing placards scoring the free staters attempted to join in the procession but were politely pushed back by the police lines.

New York, March 17.—Two hundred and fifty-five detectives in plain clothes and several hundred uniformed patrolmen were detailed to mingle with the crowds when 40,000 men and women are expected to take part in a St. Patrick's day parade.

The police order for increased protection as issued in spite of statements from the city hall that no trouble was anticipated.

A delegation claiming to represent the American association for recognition of the Irish republic called on Mayor Hylan Thursday and warned him that they would be trouble if the parade is held. The organization sent Mayor Hylan a letter repudiating the action of the delegation.

UNITED STATES TAKES MANUFACTURING LEAD

(By the Associated Press)
NEW YORK, March 17.—In the span of little more than two generations the United States has assumed the leading position among all nations in volume and variety of its fancy products, the number of wage earners engaged in manufacturing the power applied to processes and value of products, the national conference board said today in an analysis of a recent census of manufacturers.

"From 1849 to 1919 the total value of the products manufactured in the United States rose from $1,192,000,000 to nearly $62,500,000,000 and the number of wage earners employed in manufacturing from 957,069 to 9,096,372. In the first twenty-five years of this century the personnel of the manufacturing industry has more than doubled while the total value of manufactured products in 1919 approximated five and a half times the total in 1899," the report says.

FESS DENIES REQUEST ON LIGHT WINES LAWS

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Senator Fess, Republican, Ohio, informed Governor Smith of New York in a letter made public here today that he would not comply with the petition of the New York legislature for support of the proposed legal wines and beer. There should be no compromise on the liquor question, the Ohio senator said, and the proper recourse for those opposing prohibition would be to advocate the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

The whole history of the temperance movement in the United States, said the letter, "is replete with illustration of attempted compromises. The evils of this business are of such character as to have convinced the American people that it is a subject which cannot be regulated but must be annihilated."

Hickman Declares Schools Will End Session on May 19

The city schools of Ada will close May 19, according to an announcement this morning by Superintendent J. E. Hickman. All rumors that they might close prior to that time are groundless.

The finances of the city school system have been handled so economically that, unlike many other cities, it will not be necessary to curtail the length of the term. This means that Ada is to be congratulated upon being able to carry on the school work, even with decreased funds caused by the smaller tax paid by one of the railroads and other causes.

FORMER ARMED OFFICER GIVEN PRISON SENTENCE

(By the Associated Press)
ARDMORE, March 17.—Harry Sipes, former Ardmore policeman, was sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary today on a charge of manslaughter by a jury in district court after deliberating 48 hours. Sipes was charged with the murder of Herman Cheek, Ardmore barber, in October of 1922. This is the second trial Sipes has faced the first jury failing to reach a verdict.

McTigue gained the decision over Siki in a 20-round bout tonight. McTigue won on points. At the end of the contest Siki is reported to have disagreed vigorously and expressed his intention of challenging the decision.

LOUIS, March 17.—The executive committee of the international association of railroad supervisors of mechanics at a special meeting here today voted to amend the bylaws so as to allow all railroad employees holding supervisory positions membership in the organization. (By the Associated Press)
MEMPHIS, March 17.—The death toll in the tornado which swept northwestern Mississippi Thursday increased to 24 tonight with the death in a Memphis hospital of Mrs. M. H. Rich, injured when her home at Savage was demolished, and receipt of belated advices from Batesville, reporting five negroes killed in a farm settlement near that town.

BLIZZARD AGAIN SWEEPING WEST

Entire West Again To Be In Lap Of Cold Wave Over Sunday

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO, March 17.—The second blizzard within a week sweeping over the central west tonight threatened another prostration of transportation and telephone and telegraph lines.

The second storm which first appeared last night in a portion of the Canadian northwest promises pushed rapidly today over the northern plains, accompanied by a strong northerly wind.

In portions of North Dakota and Minnesota temperatures ranged from ten to twenty degrees below zero. In Nebraska and east to Lake Superior the mercury dropped to zero.

DENVER, March 17.—Lashed along by a wind that ranged from 45 miles an hour speed in Denver to 100 miles an hour in velocity at Carola, Colorado at the "top of the world" on the continental divide, the worst blizzard of the winter today swept Colorado and the Rocky Mountain region. Snow fall was general throughout the region, accompanied by rapidly descending temperatures.

One death attributed to the storm which caused a damage estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The storm entered Arizona, New Mexico and Wyoming. Fear is expressed that loss of live stock will be heavy if the fall continues.

Gowing Declares Business Showing Gradual Increase

Manager C. V. Gowing of the American Clays company expresses himself as very well satisfied with the manner in which the business of the Ada factory has been picking up during the past few months. He states that the factory is now running about 50 per cent capacity, which is about the same as the general average over the United States. Furthermore, the outlook for a further increase in volume is very promising.

Mr. Gowing states that a year ago the average output of the factories of the United States was only 26 per cent and that the Ada plant was slightly above that figure at the time. At this time the chief demand for the products of the Ada factory is for the illuminating ware, the cut glass demand to open later in the year. Nothing is being done in the casket line at this time.

CRUTCHER NEARS END WORK HERE

Final Sermon to be Preached Sunday at First Baptist Church.

The revival services of the First Baptist church will close Sunday evening with a sermon by Dr. George H. Crutcher on "Three Kinds of Decisions."

Additions to the church last evening brought the total almost to the three-quarters of a hundred mark. The sermon this morning will be on the subject, "Christ's Yoke." Going beyond his usual brilliancy, in his sermon Friday evening Dr. Crutcher carried his audience along with flights of oratory interspersed with deep reasoning and the old doctrine of repentance and saving by the grace of Christ.

His subject was "The Three Crosses," speaking of the crosses borne by Christ, by the robber who repented and was saved on the cross and the other robber who was not saved. Drawing conclusions from the repentance and saving of the thief on the cross, the speaker called attention to many things which are necessary in order to see God in another world.

The thief believed in the existence of God. He had not gone so low that he had lost faith in a divine being. He believed in a future life. He had truly repented. He was willing to acknowledge his guilt. Every human being is given a will and he is responsible for it. The thief was solicitous about the other thief or companion in crime.

The saved thief had faith. He had faith, not when Christ was calling the waves on the sea of Galilee, not when he was raising Lazarus from the dead, not when he marched in triumph before the mighty throngs with songs of praise ringing out over the hillsides. But he had faith when even some of the disciples had forsaken him. He had faith when Christ was deserted.

The saving of the thief was not dependent upon anything the thief himself could do. His conversion was sudden. A deathbed repentance was sufficient though it is the only one recorded in the Bible.

The minister closed with an appeal for those present not to take chances. One may not be in his right mind when death steals on. He may be snatched in an instant into another life.

Kansas Republican Majority and Veto Of Governor in War

TOPEKA, March 17.—The juggernaut of a republican majority and the veto bludgeon of the democratic governor vied for honors all day in the Kansas house. In every one of the thirteen tests made to override the governor's veto before the evening recess was taken the majority emerged triumphant.

To troubles of the majority Governor Davis added seven more vetoes before the dinner hour, bringing his total for the season up to 30.

Both houses before going to dinner adopted a resolution changing the date for adjournment from midnight tonight to midnight Monday. Supporters of the measure declare that they feared the governor might send a number of vetoes to the house just before midnight tonight and then follow it with a special message that the hour of twelve had arrived.

CALM PRECEDES OUTBREAK OVER RUHR QUESTION

French Continue to Take Coal From German Mines in Ruhr Basin

Responsibility Controversy for Murder of French Soldiers On

ESSEN, March 17.—The Ruhr is calm but the possibility of a certain outbreak exists. Although the newspapers declare the situation is more acute, there is not any indication of a source of trouble.

Coal is being taken from two mines by the French. The French have arrested several men in Dusseldorf for charges of sabotage. They are accused of tampering with the telephone system, the penalty for which is hard labor for life.

The controversy over the responsibility for the shooting of the two Frenchmen at Buer last week is still proceeding. The Germans have produced witnesses who contend that their assailants were French deserters, but the French state that the bullets were from revolvers such as are used by the German security police.

BERNE, Switzerland, March 17.—Traffic in that section of Germany occupied by the French and Belgians has shown signs of improvement recently, that the government declines to press the diplomatic representation to the French which business and industry demanded. It seems that ram materials and partly manufactured goods absolutely necessary for the operation of Swiss industries were not coming through the Ruhr valley.

BERLIN, March 17.—A report from Friemersheim, a Rhine town near Dusseldorf says that forty soldiers were killed and many injured when a French troop train collided. The impact was so violent that several coaches telescoped.

PARIS, March 17.—Premier Poincare will entertain no propositions for negotiations with Germany until the Berlin government makes a direct and official notice to the French government that she wants to negotiate, it was declared in French official circles.

PARIS, March 17.—Any attempt by a third power to intervene or propose discussion of terms by which a settlement might be reached with Germany, he added, would be considered an unfriendly act.

DUSSELDORF, March 17.—Two Germans were shot and killed by French sentinels during the night—one at Recklinhauser and the other at Essen.

Ada Pickles to be Shipped to Market on Wholesale Plan

J. M. Atkinson, proprietor of the Ada pickle factory, the only factory of the kind in Oklahoma is hard at work getting his product into shape for the market. His product has been on sale in Ada stores for some time, and a few days ago he contracted his first car which will be shipped to Sherman in a few days. He says he will have no trouble in disposing of about 20 cars which he will have to sell and could easily sell at least twice that number, if he had them. He regards Ada as an ideal location for a factory and with sufficient capital believes that a factory could be operated on a large scale and be a big money maker.

Mr. Atkinson expects to double his output next year, if the cucumber crop is up to normal. Most of the farmers who sold to him last year have signed up for this year, several of them doubling their acreage. Now that they have had a year's experience with cucumbers, he figures on a much better yield from most of them this year, if the season is favorable.

The Ada factory turns out three kinds of pickles, dill, sweet and sour and in time Mr. Atkinson hopes to add other products to the list.

HUNGER STRIKE ENDS AS PRISONERS TAKE FOOD

DEHAM, Mass., March 17.—The hunger strike of Nicola Sacco, convicted with Bartolomeo Vanzetti of first degree murder, was concluded at the end of 31 days, when the prisoners were taken to Boston from Norfolk county jail here forcibly fed and placed under observation.

Dr. Abraham Myerson of Boston, alienist retained by the Sacco Vanzetti defense committee to care for Sacco, administered food to the patient with the aid of jail attendants.

Ada Girl Leading in Beauty Contest at Dallas School

From Dallas Journal
 Annie Louise Shaw, of Ada, Okla., and Nellie Sims of Stratford, Texas, had received the largest number of nominations yesterday noon for the beauty contest at Southern Methodist University at which will be conducted by the Rotunda, for the first week in the third term. They were followed closely by Mabelle Rawls, Dallas, and Kathryn Mason, also of Dallas.

It will be recalled by those in this section that Miss Shaw was the May Queen of the East Central State Teachers College last year. The honor coming to her at Dallas is not the first she has received. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Shaw of East Tenth Street.

PLAN OUTLINED FOR WEEVIL WAR

Extension Agent Explains Use of Poison to Fight Boll Weevil.

Outside of cultural methods in raising cotton under boll weevil conditions poisoning with calcium arsenate has given the best results, according to a statement by Dr. Scholl state extension entomologist at the boll weevil meeting at the Chamber of Commerce Friday afternoon. However, to get good results from this the poison must be applied on nights when the dew is heavy so that the powered poison will stick to the plants. The poison costs 20 cents per pound, he said, and four or five pounds to the acre is needed for the first application and six to eight pounds in following sprayings. It should be applied four or five times at intervals of five or six days. The first application should be made when about 10 per cent of the squares have been punctured. For applying the poison a number of machines have been invented. A hand machine costs about $18 and the others come higher, the largest costing between $200 and $300. However, we warned his hearers that unless the poison is applied properly there is no use in trying it at all.

He stated that the examination of one of the cages containing 500 weevils that the department had buried near Antlers showed that 8 per cent had survived the past winter. Six per cent is considered a dangerous number to begin a season, hence it is apparent that Oklahoma is in a fair way for another tussle with the pest this year.

He mentioned the fact that numerous machines are being put on the market, and stated that none has ever been very effective in destroying the weevils. One man is out with a plan to catch them at night by means of a light. He stated that the weevils do not fly at night, hence this plan is a failure.

He said that the parasite may help some but that he does not think it will be numerous enough to be relied on to keep the weevil crop down.

Speaking of picking up punctured squares, he said that if begun at the first and was followed closely it was often effective in checking the increase of the weevils. If the first crop were picked up carefully the second crop of the insects would not be heavy, hence there would be a chance of a crop of cotton being put on before the weevils became numerous enough to destroy it.

J. S. Moore followed Dr. Scholl with an appeal for diversification and raising one's living at home. He spoke of the advantages of co-operative marketing of the cotton crop and the effective work of the Oklahoma Cotton Growers association and other organizations in bringing about a system of orderly marketing.

P. W. Vaught, director of the Cotton Growers' association, said a few words regarding the work of the organization.

EVANGELIST PRAISES WORK OF ADA PASTOR

An Appreciation of Rev. C. C. Morris

By G. H. Crutcher

Having known Mr. Morris since he was a student in college and being acquainted with his family, I want to say some words of appreciation of him. He comes of an honorable family. He is a man of fine moral character, honest and straightforward, has a sympathetic heart, a strong conviction for things that are right, and a consuming desire to be helpful to the people with whom he comes in contact. He married a young woman who had graduated the year before him and who had sustained the very highest reputation while a student in college. They entered life very ably qualified for its duties and they are each well qualified for leadership in any community to which they may go.

During the world war, Mr. Morris rendered his full quota of service with the men over there. He retired from the service with a conscience clear of any offense toward men and an approval by his Government for services well rendered. He is an unusually fine personal worker; his heart beats with a consuming passion to win the lost to Jesus Christ and he is constantly working in that direction. This community is to be congratulated upon having in its midst such a worthy man so well qualified; with a wife equally as well qualified and thoroughly sympathetic with all his religious activities.

The Baptist of this city and this section owe it to themselves and to the community at large to see that an adequate church building is erected in the near future. The Baptist church of this community has likely reached its fullest growth under present conditions, and with a young virile pastor the matter of building such a plant is a minor undertaking, and I feel confident that all public spirited people would welcome the efforts to build such a church as the community needs.

Increase Expected in Fourth Quarter College Enrollment

Tomorrow will mark the beginning of the fourth term of the college year. Enrollment was practically completed during the past week so that the students could go on with their work Monday without loss of time. Many new faces were seen in the office and President Linscheid has estimated that there will be at least a hundred new students enrolling for the next term. Many of these will be teachers whose terms have expired and who are returning to school here to continue their studies in this institution.

A number of students even larger than that of last summer is expected for the coming summer term, beginning May 28. An enrollment of eighteen hundred was secured last summer, and Mr. Linscheid states that he has no idea of just how many more will be in Ada during the summer this year.

Fourteen states of this country have placed a maximum legal limit on employment agency fees.

Saturday Night in Ada

The Observation of the Trend of Life With All Classes Represented.

(By An Observer)

What is the most interesting thing you see when you come down town Saturday evenings? Is it a show window? Is it the lines and lines of automobiles? Is it the general bustle and activity of a small city at its busiest hours? Or is it just simply a study of human nature?

Standing at the First National Bank corner and watching the lines of humanity, one who is given to thinking cannot but be impressed with the passing show.

First we notice two little children, one a boy of four or five years and his little sister. The sturdy little lad is seeing that his sister is protected. When she loiters a bit, he urges her on. When she gets too interested in some purring automobile, he pulls her back into line and trudges along.

Did you ever think what a dependable escort a boy is for his sister? And did it ever occur to you that the girl who does not have a brother to protect her is missing one of the most wholesome things in life? And do you remember how you once protected your own sister? At times she might have been roadstruck and led you a merry chase, but just the same she was given to you to protect and you would have rushed a mad bull rather than see injury come to her.

We then noticed an old man, possibly nearing the grave, come trudging along. His beard is white. His step is feeble and he places his feet on the walk with care. Tomorrow or next day he will return to the God who sent him here, and will be asked his reasons for expecting happiness in a future estate. What must be his thoughts as he views the happy crowd, bent only on pleasure. Is he saying that all is vanity? Is he saying that life is real and life is earnest and the grave is not the goal? I don't know and you don't know, but it pleases, and the thoughts are not pleasure, and the radiance of his countenance shows his life has been well spent. There is no indication of dissipation.

View Feminine Passers Here comes two girls in their early teens. Their skirts are short and their legs are well dressed in fancy hose. Their faces are painted slightly too much. Their eyes roll first this way and then that, as though they were in search of companions. They are not bad, but a bit indiscreet.

A few years from now these girls will be women and will become mothers of men. Will they give to the world those who will bless it or those who will curse it. I don't know and you don't know. One may be the greatest person in Ada for she may give to the world the greatest man of the next generation.

Here comes another female of the species, alone. Her eyes are too bold. Her face painted too much. Her life has been selfish. A few more years and she will pass off the earth, forgotten and cursed by those who have come into contact with her.

Another girl follows. She is putting into her handbag a letter. Her eyes sparkle with pleasure, for no doubt she has been reading a message of love from some swain in a distant place. She does not notice any one about her. May her pleasures be as great as she anticipates.

Here is a man who has been drinking corn whiskey for several days. His eyes are red. His walk is even now unsteady. Generally he is rather decent chap and it is to be hoped that the fiend lets go of him.

Next we see a business man. He steps quick, knows where he is going and wants to get there without delay. He shows the strain of the week's affairs and seems in a hurry to get through and get home for Sunday's let down.

A matronly woman with two young children wobbles by, her young brood keeping her busy. Two lady schoolteachers, engaged in serious conversation pass on their weekly treat to the movies.

And thus the stream continues. Doctors, lawyers, teachers, farmers, school boys and girls, merchants,—the entire list of human occupation is represented.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

FEAR DESTROYED: Fear thou not; for I am with thee; be not dismayed; for I am thy God; I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee, yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness.—Isaiah 41.10.

IMMIGRANTS STILL COMING.

During the last one hundred years the immigrants arriving in America, in round numbers, totaled 36,000,000. This is approximately one-third of our total population at the present time. According to the 1920 census the number of foreign-born persons living in this country at that time was 14,000,000. During the fiscal year 1921 the high tide of immigration was reached, the number of arrivals during that year being 805,000, while for the year 1920 the total number was 430,000.

By the congressional act of May 19, 1921, the number of persons permitted to enter the United States from a foreign country was limited to 3 per cent of that nationality residing in this country in 1910 as shown by the federal census. It was provided that this act should be effective till June 30, 1924. Figures already compiled show that more than three-fourths of the countries from which immigrants come to America have already furnished their quota for the present fiscal year and it is expected that all will reach their limit before June 30. The total number permitted under the act mentioned above is 358,000.

Additional legislation regarding immigration will be one of the problems to come before the next congress. Already a movement which has for its object a more liberal policy finds support among certain large industrial interests, the principal argument advanced in favor of it being the alleged need for more labor. On the other hand, those who are looking at the matter from the large viewpoint of national interests and social welfare, instead of letting down the bars a little more, would build them up higher, still further reducing the number of immigrants.

In view of the number of unassimilated aliens whom we already have in our country, it would certainly seem that the wisest course we can pursue for a number of years is to concern ourselves seriously with the problem of Americanizing the foreign elements of our population, in the meantime holding down immigration to a minimum.—Chickasha Express.

The hot check bill, which the governor permitted to become a law without his signature, is a piece of legislation that has been needed for a long time. Heretofore the public had little protection from the hot check artists and they thrived in every community. If through mistake a person gives a check that overdraws his bank balance, he is given five days to make good. If this is not done he faces trouble. For amounts under $20 the penalty may be as much as a fine of $100 or thirty days in jail, or both. For larger amounts one may be given as much as a $500 fine or seven years in the penitentiary or both. This law has enough teeth in it to make it interesting for the hot check specialist.

That Michigan girl who by means of a hot water bottle managed to push the thermometer to 115 degrees, thus fooling the doctors into believing that her case was a most extraordinary one, had quite a bit of fun for a week or two and managed to get her name on the front page of all the papers, but came near paying for it in the end. After being caught at her trick she was taken really ill and for a time it looked like she might shuffle off. Thus the joke was turned. Just what the girl had in mind by her trick has not been learned, but if she was trying to create a sensation she succeeded all right.

The Legislature did well when it appropriated $650,000 for the weaker schools of the state. We believe in economy, but do not believe in beginning to economize at the expense of the education of our younger generation. Where a district has gone its limit to maintain an eight-months term and is unable to keep it open that long, it is the duty of the state to help out to a reasonable degree. By all means give the boys and girls a chance.

Saturday was St. Patrick's Day and on every continent and in every clime the green was displayed in memory of the patron saint of Old Ireland. St. Patrick, among other things, is given credit for freeing the island of snakes. Just now with all the guerilla warfare going on it looks like he is badly needed once more, since something worse than snakes is endangering the land which he freed.

The outlook for the regular Republicans when congress meets again is none too rosy. The insurgents hold the balance of power between the regulars and the Democrats and are in a position to exact terms of the old guard in the way of committee assignments and legislation and will show no hesitancy in doing so. In both houses it may be the tail that wags the dog this time instead of the reverse.

When all has been said the fact remains that a large part of a man's woes are due to his own mistakes of judgment or plain cussedness.

The Forum of the Press

The Statesman in Retreat

(San Antonio Express)
It is common enough in this age to see a statesman retired to private life by his constituents' votes. That has happened to some of the country's ablest political leaders; but it is rare to see a man freely renounce a high and honored position as John Sharpe Williams of Mississippi has done.

There are in the Senate many older men than Mr. Williams. He was 68 last July and he might have gone on grappling with Senators Lodge, Cummins, La Follette and Johnson another six years and still have retired comparatively young. And undoubtedly the post would have been his for the asking. In announcing his intention months ago, Mr. Williams said, "I would rather be a dog and bay the moon than continue in the Senate." And his farewell dinner in Washington lately, the veteran statesman, portraying the pastoral life he had planned on his Mississippi plantation, observed: "Now, some will say that is not a wonderful thing to do, but it's a lot more honest than being senator."

Allowing for a certain cynicism in these statements, it still would seem that the world's highest deliberative body had fallen into parlous ways, if so conservative, level-headed a citizen, after twelve years' membership, could speak in such derogatory terms. It was deep disgust with the squabble over the Versailles treaty that clinched Senator Williams' decision. There were suggestions that aversion to crossing swords with his old-time foe, Vardaman, and consequent mixing in Mississippi's local political mess, might have had something to do with it; but that is doubtful, as Williams is a natural born fighter. In his retirement, Mississippi loses the services of her most brilliant statesman—a son whom any state might be proud to claim—and the senate loses a scholarly, staunch broad-minded and far-sighted member. Those are not qualities with which the senate is supplied so plentifully that it can afford to give up their possessors.

Senator Williams once was mentioned for the democratic presidential nomination and, had he been more fortunately situated geographically, doubtless would have been a formidable contender for the honor. His senatorial place has known honored names before him—Sargent S. Prentiss L. Q. C. Lamar, James Z. George, H. D. Money—and Williams is the peer of any. The statesman in retreat far from the hot political strife is no novel figure—Washington at Mount Vernon, Jefferson at Monticello, Clemenceau in La Vendee and many a lesser light. It is a dramatic and appealing figure.

RECREATION PART SUMMER PROGRAM

East Central to Afford its Followers With Best of Recreational Opportunities

Teachers who attend the East Central State Teachers College this summer are assured of greater recreational opportunities than ever before. The faculty of the Teachers College have completed an arrangement with Mr. Horner of Kansas City whereby a seven day chautauqua will be brought to Ada about the middle of June. There will be fourteen programs consisting of high grade musical selections, scientific addresses, plays and lectures, all of them designed to be entertaining as well as educative in their nature.

This is the biggest Chautauqua in the country. It is taken only to the best cities in the United States, the smaller cities being unable to finance a chautauqua of this size and quality. Only the fact that the Teachers College has an enrollment of upwards of eighteen hundred during the summer term, makes possible the coming of this array of talent.

Students of the Teachers College will be admitted to all of these programs upon their Student Enterprise Tickets. In other words, they will be given fourteen high class entertainments without additional expense to the students.

Included in the list of attractions are United States Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, who has made a reputation as being the most eloquent man in the United States Senate; Jess Pugh, the greatest of American entertainers; two of the most laughable plays on the American stage today, and ten other programs.

grams of almost equal rank with these headline attractions. When it is remembered that Senator Harrison receives $250.00 for each lecture engagement, it is easy to see that the Teachers College is sparing no expense in bringing wholesome recreational features here for the summer term.

In addition to this Chautauqua there will be a number of the foremost educators in the country who will deliver addresses here. All of these recreational features will be given outside of the regular school-hours so that they will in no way interfere with the regular school activities of the students. It is certain that no institution in the Southwest will have a greater number of recreational features than East Central. The summer term begins Monday May 28.

There will be more music on the campus this summer than ever before. The College has an excellent band, a high grade male quartet, Women's Chorus, and other musical organizations. It is planned to have these organizations contribute their full quota towards making the stay of visiting teachers pleasant and profitable.

East Central has made an excellent reputation for thorough instruction. The institution will do all in its power to live up to the best traditions of the American Teachers colleges in the matter of preparing teachers because of the right sort of training in the class and lecture rooms. It is the ambition of those in charge of the institution to make it the best school of its kind in the state. Since recreation of the right sort is an important factor in education, added emphasis will be given to this phase of school life during the summer term when teachers from all parts of the state will be in attendance here.

"A SPECIMEN"

John 11:5

"Now Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus."
There is a great value in a specimen.

A specimen is a lens through which you can see and get a notion of the whole class of which it is part and instance.

Our scripture and surroundings are a very shining specimen of the Divine Love.

Behold the Angle Though

1. Though Jesus loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus, he permitted Lazarus to sicken and die. How many specimens like this can you add from your own acquaintance?

2. Though Jesus loved Martha and her sister, and Lazarus, he did not immediately answer the prayer of the sisters. No where can be found a prayer more truly a prayer than this: "Lord, he whom thou lovest is sick." What trust, what submission, what clinging in it.

3. Though the messenger hurried, the Lord does not hurry.

4. Though Jesus loved Martha, and her sister and Lazarus, he left the sisters to the regretful bewailing of the human "If." "Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died."

Behold From the Angle Since

1. Since our Lord loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus, he continued for benignant purposes. Looking through the whole story, do you not see that his delay was better and more loving than had been his swifter coming.

Lazarus lifted out of death with all the glorious truth of the Lord's mastery over death in this dying world was better for the sisters and for you and me, than had been Lazarus merely prevented from dying.

2. Since our Lord loved them, he did not come that he might furnish help for our faith.

3. Since Jesus loved them, he would assure them of the Divine sympathy "Jesus wept." Think of the immensities of the consolation in such revelation of the weeping God.

4. Since our Lord loved them, he gave them better answer than they had ever dared to pray for or to dream. They prayed that he might be kept from dying. Jesus gave him raised from the dead. Wise love must sometimes run strange to imperfections and ignorance.

LEATRICE JOY WEARS SUPERB CHINESE GEMS IN "JAVA HEAD"

Actress Made Responsible for Safety of Jewelry During Filming of Picture.

Leatrice Joy, who plays the role of a high caste Chinese woman in George Melford's Paramount production of "Java Head" which will be the feature at the McSwain theatre next Monday and Tuesday had a goodly share of responsibility imposed upon her during the

There are no fewer than seventy-nine distinct articles of jewelry and costume accessories of which Miss Joy must keep accurate account and make correct use. Among them are included large and small peacocks, jade grape pins, mottled stone ornaments, ivory hair-pins, ivory and silver dope pipe, small brass nail-heads, jade and pearl earrings, double strand of green glass beads, moonstone ornaments and various other pretties.

Being an American girl, Leatrice Joy naturally contrasts this varied collection of gems with the unusual meagre assortment which is owned by American women of the same station as Taou Yen, the Chinese character which she portrays.

"After naming such pieces as a rope of pearls, several rings, a diamond-studded wrist watch, a pair of jade ear-rings, and perhaps a bar pin and gold cigarette case, the average American woman is wont to consider her jewel case well stocked," says Miss Joy, whereas a Chinese woman of similar social position would regard such a collection as merely a slim start toward the necessary number of ornaments."

Ada Shows Musical Growth

All Things Musical Claim Part in Life of Ada, Summary of Situation Indicates.

That Ada is in a fair way to become a real musical center is evident from the growing interest in all things musical, both in imported talent and in the development of local ability. For several years high class musicians have been brought to Ada and great interest has been shown in their performances. Even more recently a number of musical organizations have been formed for the purpose of developing local talent and providing good music for the town.

There is much talent already developing here and endless quantity of material which lacks training, according to Mr. A. L. Fentem, who is in charge of the music at the college here. The only thing that has prevented Ada from becoming a greater musical center, according to him is the fact that the citizens here have been slow in taking hold of the problem in a serious way.

Among entertainers who have been before the Ada people are Arthur Middleton, Marie Rappold, Lucy Gates, Anna Case, Oscar Siegel, Paul Althouse, the Cherniavsky trio, Paulo Gruppe, and other artists of well known ability. Several of these have appeared here more than once. A number of high class musical entertainments are now being scheduled for the coming months.

There are in Ada about twelve piano teachers who can give as good musical training on that instrument as could be desired. These teachers can give advanced work as well as work for beginners. Only in the past two years has there been opportunity for advanced violin work. Miss Helene Goss, who teaches violin here, has found no lack of interest in that line of musical endeavor, but most of the students of that instrument are either beginners or have had little experience.

Plenty of good voices are to be found here but there is no concerted effort to make that department of music a feature. Pupils are forced to go elsewhere for advanced training, which could easily be provided here if everyone interested would get together and work toward that goal.

High School Band Feature

Among local musical organizations is the high school band. Mr. Fentem started this organization several years ago with a small number of inexperienced players. Since that time the high school band has developed into one of the best, if not, as the high school enthusiastically believed, the best high school band in the state. It has played several times in the state contests for bands and this year hopes to capture the honors for first place. Mr. Hill, principal of the high school, is the present director of the band.

The early high school players formed the nucleus for the formation of the present college band, now under direction of Mr. Fentem. This is the first year for the college band, but it has set a record of accomplishment that any school band might envy. The band took part in the inaugural parade of Governor Walton at Oklahoma City and was said by many observers to be the best band in the parade. Recently it made a two weeks tour through the East Central district to advertise the college, finishing with a concert here last week. They were received with enthusiasm everywhere on the trip and established the fact through the district that the local college is a real school.

The local DeMolay chapter has formed a band which will take an active part in the activities of the local boys. This organization is under the direction of Mr. Schrieber who is also in charge of the battery band, which consists largely of members of the high school and college bands.

Both high school and college support well trained orchestras, with beginners organizations to develop talent for the major clubs. In addition to these school orchestras three of the ward schools have taken up music in this line and are training the younger children in orchestra work.

VLADIVOSTOK, Feb. — Food taxes have not been a success in this district, although the authorities are declaring that the collection of taxes has been very satisfactory. The government has no money to buy food products in large quantities abroad, and one of the leading commissars has declared that if things do not improve the district is in danger of famine this year. Soldiers of the Red Army are going from house to house begging for food, although this is strictly forbidden by the army regulations. The men complain that they get only one and a half pounds of bread daily and sometimes soup made of fish. They are supposed to get a salary of 25 kopecks a day, but many of them have not been paid for more than three months.

CHAPTER X

Rojas.

No word from George Thorne had come to Forlorn River in weeks. Gale grew concerned over the fact, and began to wonder if anything serious could have happened to him. Mercedes showed a slow, weary strain. Thorne's commission expired the end of January, and if he could not get his discharge immediately, he surely could obtain leave of absence. Therefore, Gale waited, not without growing anxiety, and did his best to cheer Mercedes. The first of February came bringing news of rebel activities and bandit operations in and around Casita, but not a word from the cavalryman.

A dozen times Gale declared he would ride in to Casita and find out why they did not hear from Thorne; however, older and wiser heads prevailed over his impetuosity. Belding and the rangers and the Yaqui held a consultation. Not only had the Indian become a faithful servant to Gale, but he was also of value to Belding. Yaqui had all the craft of his class, and superior intelligence. His knowledge of Mexicans was second only to his hate of them. And Yaqui, who had been scouting on all the trails, gave information that made Belding decide to wait some days before sending anyone to Casita.

It was upon Gale's coming from this conference that he encountered Nell. Since the interrupted siesta episode she had been more than ordinarily elusive, and about all he had received from her was a tantalizing smile from a distance. He got the impression now, however, that she had awaited him. When he drew close to her he was certain of it, and he experienced more than surprise.

"Dick," she began, hurriedly. "Mercedes is dying by inches. Can't you see what ails her? It's more than love or fear. It's uncertainty—suspense. Oh, can't we find out for her?"

"Nell, I feel as badly as you about her. I wanted to ride to Casita. Belding shut me up quick, the last time."

Nell came close to Gale, clasped his arm. There was no color in her face. Her eyes held a dark, eager excitement.

"Dick, will you slip off without Dad's consent? Risk it! Go to Casita and find out what's happened to Thorne—at least if he ever started for Forlorn River?"

"No, Nell, I won't do that." She drew away from him with passionate suddenness.

"Are you afraid?" This certainly was not the Nell Burton that Gale knew.

"No, I'm not afraid," Gale replied, a little nettled.

"Will you go—for my sake?" Like lightning her mood changed and she was close to him again, hands on his, her face white, her whole presence sweetly ailing.

"Nell, I won't disobey Belding," protested Gale. "I won't break my word."

"Dick, it'll not be so bad as that. But—what if it is? . . . Go, Dick, if not for poor Mercedes' sake, then for mine—to please me. I'll—I'll . . . you won't lose anything by going. I think I know how Mercedes feels. Just a word from Thorne or about him would save her. Take Blanco Sol and go, Dick. What rebel outfit could ever ride you down on that horse? Why, Dick, if I was up on Sol I wouldn't be afraid of the whole rebel army."

Gale could only stare at this transformed girl.

"Dick, listen! . . . If you go—if you fetch some word of Thorne to comfort Mercedes, you—well, you will have your reward. Dick, will you go?"

"No—no!" cried Gale, in violence, struggling with himself. "Nell Burton, I'll tell you this. To have the reward I want would mean pretty near heaven for me. But not even for that will I break my word to your father."

She seemed the incarnation of girlish scorn and wilful passion.

"Gracias, señor," she replied, mockingly. "Adios." Then she flashed out of his sight.

Gale went to his room at once, disturbed and thrilling, and did not soon recover from that encounter.

The following morning at the breakfast table Nell was not present. "She's in one of her tantrums lately," said Belding. "Wouldn't speak to me this morning. Let her alone, mother. She's spoiled enough, without running after her. She's always hungry. She'll be on hand presently, don't mistake me."

Notwithstanding Belding's conviction, which Gale shared, Nell did not appear at all during the hour. Perhaps half an hour afterward, as Gale was leaving his room, he saw the Yaqui running up the path from the fields. Gale wondered what was the matter. Yaqui ran straight to Belding, who was at work at his bench under the wagon shed. In less than a moment Belding was bellowing for his rangers. Gale got to him first, but Ladd and Lash were not far behind.

"Raiders!" exclaimed Jim Lash. "Lord only knows. Yaqui says it wasn't raiders."

"Send Yaqui to find the boss' trail, an' let's figger," said Ladd. "Shore this 's no ruder job."

In the swift search that ensued Gale did not have anything to say; but his mind was forming a conclusion. When he found his old saddle and bridle missing from the peg in the barn his conclusion became a positive conviction, and it made him, for the moment, cold and sick and speechless.

"Hey, Dick, don't take it so much to heart," said Belding. "We'll likely find Sol, and if we don't, there's other good horses."

"I'm not thinking of Sol," replied Gale.

Ladd cast a sharp glance at Gale, snapped his fingers, and said:

"D—n me if I ain't guessed it too!" "What's wrong with you locoed gents?" bluntly demanded Belding.

"Nell has started for Casita," burst out Gale. "She has gone to fetch Mercedes some word about Thorne. Oh, Belding, you needn't shake your head. I know she's gone. She tried to persuade me to go, and was furious when I wouldn't."

"I don't believe it," replied Belding, hoarsely. "Nell may have her temper. She's a little devil at times, but she always had good sense."

"Tom, you can gamble she's gone," said Ladd.

"Aw, h—l, no! Jim, what do you think?" implored Belding.

"I reckon Sol's white head is pointed level and straight down Casita trail. An' Nell can ride. We're losin' time."

That roused Belding to action.

"I say you're all wrong," he yelled, starting for the corral. "She's only taking a little ride, same as she's done often. But rustle now. Find out. Dick, you ride cross the valley. Jim, you hunt up and down the river. I'll head up San Felipe way. And you, Laddy, take Diablo and hit the Casita trail. If she really has gone after Thorne you can catch her in an hour or so."

"Shore I'll go," replied Ladd. "But, Beldin', if you're not plumb crazy

"Blanco Sol Gone!" yelled Belding, in a rage.

you're close to it. That big white devil can't catch Sol. Not in an hour or a day or a week!"

"Laddy, you mean to say Sol is a faster horse than Diablo?" thundered Belding, his face purple.

"Shore I mean to tell you just that there," replied the ranger. "I'll ride your Blanco Devil as he never was rid before, 'cept once when a d—n sight better hossman than I am couldn't make him outrun Sol."

Without more words the men saddled and were off. The interminable time that followed contained for Gale about as much suspense as he could well bear. What astonished him and helped him greatly to fight off actual distress was the endurance of Nell's mother.

Early on the morning of the second day, Gale saw three white horses and a bay come wearily stepping down the road. He heard Blanco Sol's familiar whistle, and he leaped up wild with joy. The horse was riderless. Gale's sudden joy received a violent check, then resurged when he saw a limp form in Jim Lash's arms. Ladd was supporting a horseman who wore a military uniform.

Gale shouted with joy and ran into the house to tell the good news. It was the ever-thoughtful Mrs. Belding who prevented him from rushing to tell Mercedes.

Lash handed down a ragged, travel-stained, wan girl into Belding's arms. "Dad! Mama!"

It was indeed a repentant Nell, but there was spirit yet in the tired blue eyes. Then she caught sight of Gale and gave him a faint smile.

"Hello—Dick."

"Nell!" Gale reached for her hand, held it tightly, and found speech difficult.

"You needn't worry—about your old horse," she said, as Belding carried her toward the door. "Oh, Dick! Blanco Sol is—glorious!"

Gale turned to greet his friend. Indeed, it was but a haggard ghost of the cavalryman. Thorne looked ill and wounded. Gale's greeting was also a question full of fear.

Thorne's answer was a faint smile. He seemed ready to drop from the saddle. Gale helped Ladd hold Thorne upon the horse until they reached the house. Belding came out again. His welcome was checked as he saw the condition of the cavalryman. Thorne reeled into Dick's arms. But he was able to stand and walk.

"I'm not—hurt. Only weak—starved," he said. "Is Mercedes—take me to her."

"She'll be well the minute she sees him," averred Belding, as he and Gale led the cavalryman to Mercedes' room. There they left him; and Gale, at least, felt his ears ringing with the girl's broken cry of joy.

When Belding and Gale hurried forth again the rangers were tending the tired horses. Upon returning to the house Jim Lash calmly lit his pipe, and Ladd declared that, hungry as he was, he had to tell his story.

"Shore, Beldin'," began Ladd, "that was funny about Diablo catchin' Blanco Sol. Funny ain't the word. I nearly laughed myself to death. Well, I rode in Sol's tracks all the way to Casita. Never seen a rebel or a rider till I got to town. I went straight to the camp of the cavalrymen, an' found them just coolin' off an' dressin' down their hosses after what looked to me like a big ride."

"Some soldier too!" me to an officer's tent. Nell was there, some white an' all in. She just said, 'Laddy!'

THE 1923 CAR OWNER IS MORE CAREFUL WITH TIRES

SAYS, C. H. MCKELLAR OF ADA SERVICE AND FILLING STATION

"Huge Reduction" Made in Past "Wastes"

"One evidence of a return to normalcy was very marked during the past year," says C. H. McKellar of the Ada Service and Filling Station. "Motorists this season are taking much better care of their tires than during the boom times of 1920."

"It is a fact," said M. McKellar, that about 80 per cent of all automobile tires used to go out of service a long time before they should, due to the abuse by their owners. Under-inflation used to be one of the most common abuses, and the greatest cause of failures.

"It was estimated that in 1920, about $400,000,000 was the national tire waste, due to abuse. This has now been reduced perhaps a third."

"In 1915, it was estimated that five tires and five tubes were necessary per automobile per year. In 1923, 2 1-2 tires and tubes will be approximately the national average per car. Of course, tires are a whole lot better today. For instance, on Seiberling Cords which sell only 1.4 per cent have come back for adjustment."

"Then, too, the good tire dealer today goes far to co-operate with the car owner in seeing that the tires are run under the best conditions. We are glad to check up to see that the wheels are in alignment, and we are glad to check the inflation for our customers, regularly. Wheel mis-alignment and under-inflation constitute causes of at least 90 per cent of the tire failures."

"The interest of the car owners themselves, and the better tires of today, are the chief reasons why the big national waste in tires has been reduced."

SCHOOL NOTES

GLENWOOD

The Parent-Teachers association joined the school in a social evening Friday.

The school rendered a short program, the audience joined in a singing, after which refreshments were served, consisting of hot doughnuts and coffee. Everyone had a good time.

The Glenwood Literary Society met Thursday after recess, program consisting of reading, music and a short play was rendered.

The Thursday morning assembly was an enjoyable occasion. Mrs. Hansard, 4th grade teacher favored us with a reading. Supt. Hickman made a report on his visit to the National convention and the quartet rendered several numbers.

Raymond Duke, Cecil Lough, Lora Wilson and Lucile Todd, who were absent on account of flu have returned to the 8th grade.

Ludie Prwett, from McAllister entered 8th this week. Farley Smith, Uba Bevels, Allie Kuykendall, Azell McNally, Charley Curry, Ted Rogers, Annie Keegan and Binion Kirkbride have returned to the 7th grade having been out several days with flu.

The pie party at Glenwood Friday night was a success. The program rendered by the pupils was enjoyed by all. Sambo, the black face comedian made a hit while the quartet had much praise, but the fairies were the scream of the evening.

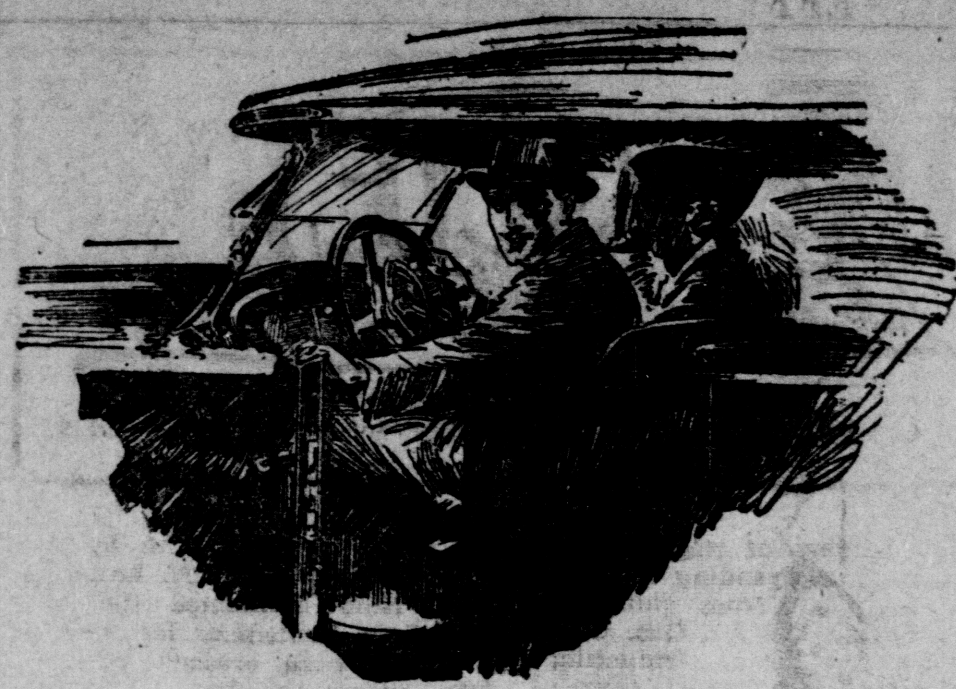

Baseball is progressing rapidly, the boys are working hard.

After pounding Willard for 17 scores, while giving them only two, the boys held Irving to a 4-2 score. This was much more than anyone expected. Our boys had them guessing for six innings before Irving scored. Conley and Boyd our battery, played the stellar role for us in the infield, while Simon Stow in center field made several spectacular catches.

It was a good game and both teams were pleased.

CHEROKEE.—Members of Junior Pig Clubs in Alfalfa county shipped three carloads of pigs to be exhibited at the Southwest American livestock show at Oklahoma City, according to George Newton, county agricultural agent.

The shipment represented pig clubs of Cherokee, Jet, Amorita, Lambert and Glotry, the county agent said. Other clubs in the county are at Carmen, Aline and Burlington.

RECORD OF ADA DEBATE ENDS

Team Makes Enviably Record Until Losing to University Hi.

From among the public speaking students, in charge of Mr. German, several have been under training in debate. He has three teams, none of whom have had experience before this school year. Besides the discussions between teams in the club meetings and in English classes, occasionally, the first team had a practice debate with the Forum of the College, without judges, and have participated in the all high state debate.

The team has been victorious in every debate, except in that with the University High School of Norman, in which one judge voted for Norman one Ada and the third gave Ada 114 1-2 points and the University High 115 points, the difference being attributed by this judge to a more composed delivery of the opposing team because of longer experience before the public. The Ada team defeated Stone-wall two to one; and Seminole, three to nothing.

Mr. German could have entered the team in conference debates of the larger high school but for lack of sufficient funds.

The first debating team, Joy Pegg, Faye Laird and Bob Naylor, has taken intensive training and made a remarkable record. Pegg is especially good in quickness to see the salient point of his opponents, and in poise of physical bearing; Miss Faye is usually thorough in thought and wise in selecting and impressive in speaking her rebuttal points, and Naylor is wonderfully gifted in original rebuttal and happy, earnest delivery.

MAIN STREET

—BY—
V. L. E.

The Flag of Erin waved frantically in the stiff gale that ushered St. Pat's Day into Ada.

That popular day of truce for the public and the police personnel of our larger cities waned here with few Shamrocks, but plenty of followers.

Although the supply of Shamrocks was early purchased off by more enthusiastic sons of Erin, others strove to show their pride in the family tree that sprouted in Ireland by bedecking themselves in various garments of green ranging from ties and socks to countenances.

Of course peaceful Ada expected no community uprising between factions of sons of Ireland on the national fight anthem, "Long live the Orangemen," but should this handicap owing to the short run at the brick plant.

Local merchants who prepared to furnish Shamrocks for the local Irish population were applauded at the request of several parties, whose nationality is under question but who have contributed freely to the relief for down-trodden residents in Palestine.

Others view the celebration of St. Pat's Day as a just relief from the period of turmoil in the "oil" centre and refrain from expressing themselves because they hardly know what form of government is now in power in that country.

'Twas St. Pat's day in our alley. And all the folks were primed. To hear the work of McNally. Start the battle off on time.

****
We still contend that there is room for argument on the contention suspenders are more important than statesmen.

Many an Ada housewife will be glad when Spring gets here and the weeds grow up in the back yard so that she can have some place to throw her cans.

****
Fellows if you fall in love, don't be noisy about it.

—for it has been said that there will come a time when it is best that things be left unsaid.

—and just remember that when its all over and the Sweet Young Thing of the days before—, gets mad she'll just delight in telling all your friends of all the idiotic things you were saying that night in the moonlight.

—you'll blame it on the moon now—but remember you told her that she caused all those foolish utterances to fall from your lips.

—and then if things go wrong and you're up before the judge after spending $60 and many nights of anxiety, she may tell him all you told her during the foolish age.

Debating teams should be composed exclusively of girls and then there would be some competition but what chance does a mixed team have when the opposing team doesn't vary from the natural argumentative standpoint.

COOPER AND IVEY TO MIX IN BOUT

Popular Mit Artists to End Suspension in 10-Round Bout Here.

Sport fans are getting set for the coming exhibition bout between Arche Cooper, local winner of many ring engagements, and Battling Ivey of Wilson.

Cooper will go into intensive training next week for his bout here on March 23. Ivey is expected to arrive early in the week to open training quarters.

No preliminaries have yet been arranged for the Cooper-Ivey 10-round engagement, but it is expected that lively bouts will precede the main go. Sparks will probably be billed with some other aspirant for the semi-finals.

Considerable interest is being shown here in the coming bout. Cooper and Ivey pleased a large gathering of fans in their last bout and it is expected that the bout Friday night will be even more of a show than their first engagement.

The staging of the Cooper-Ivey bout comes directly under the management of the Norman Howard post American Legion. Other bouts have been under their auspices but the bout Friday night will be the first to be directly managed by the Legion.

*Advent of the New Spring Styles in Wearing Apparel for Men, Women & Children
New Developments for the Home-Beautiful*

To Top the Mode with Smartness

It is often said—and quite truly—that you can always tell when a woman is wearing a new hat by the gratified, pleased expression on her face. Somehow, with a becoming new hat she feels well dressed no matter how old and shabby her frock or her coat may be. And a smart hat really does set off the costume as well as the face, marvelously. But perhaps the newest idea is to have a hat which is suitable and appropriate with the rest of one's costume. In fact, the real secret of being well dressed is the ability to wear things that go well together and are becoming to you. The woman who has very few costumes, but makes them complete by having her hat just perfectly suited to her frock and her shoes, gloves and hosiery in perfect accord, will always look well dressed even though she wears that same costume every day in the year.

Unless one keeps strict rein on one's self, one is apt to see some charming little hat in a shop window whose great appeal lies in the fact that it is wholly different from the things we have and of which we are terribly tired. If, in addition to this, it is becoming and the saleslady is clever—we are lost and buy it without further thought. But this really is not necessary, for never before have we been offered such countless varieties and variations of the millinery mode.

Smart Street Wear.
For street wear the little felt cloche is still quite the smartest. Generally the crown of the cloche is high and is either rounded or cone shaped. But in the brim and in the trimming the variation is infinite. One smart little model has a narrow brim turned down so simply in front that it resembles a bucket and in the back it goes to the other extreme and turns so abruptly that it is flat to crown of the hat. It is trimmed with a fuzzy little pompon fa back on the right side. This tendency is soon on countless smart hats. The trimming is way back on the right side and now and then even moving right to the back.

Another smart cloche has a narrow brim turned up on the left side and abruptly down on the right. Flat against the crown, pointing down to the right shoulder is a quill.

Frequently one will see a little ribbon cockade sewed flat to the crown of the hat.

Still other styles of the cloche will be turned up in the front and an extremely narrow brim turned down in the back. When this is the case a fluffy little pompon will be seen clinging closely to the right cheek.

Stiff Felts in Vogue.

A very unusual combination has recently come into great vogue with these stiff felt hats. A narrow binding of silver or gold on the edge of the brim and sometimes a band of this same cloth around the crown. The felt hats of any of the many shades of gray are trimmed with silver cloth, while those of brown favor the gold. In these little hats, dark blue and black are conspicuous by their absence.

For sports wear this felt mode is quite the most popular. The shape is just the same as the street hat, but the trimming is much more simple. The ever favored silk bandanna is drawn tightly across the turned-down brim of many a smart little hat which will take its way around the golf course some sunny morning. And the wearer of a felt cloche with a flat ribbon cockade is certain to be seen that very same day, so popular is this style. Even silver cloth made its appearance for sport wear when the hat was of a beautiful white.

The soft felt hat which may be made to the wearer's every good is just right for sports wear, though it is not worn with a street frock.

Hats For Afternoon Wear.

With the hat to be worn with an afternoon frock feathers are in high favor, but invariably they are turned down and reach far below the brim of the hat. The crowns of these hats are so generally rounded and cone shaped that a square crown is quickly noticeable, though they do make their appearance now and then.

A lovely little hat worn at a very fashionable tea recently had a small turn-down brim, and an uncurled ostrich plume which started at the middle of the back of the crown and falling over the right ear curved gracefully under the charming wearer's chin. Almost every feather used tries to follow this same general line.

Frequently one will see an ostrich feather plucked so that the feathery part is just a little pompon at the end.

Strange unheard of birds, if they have long, curving feathery tails, are also quite at the height of mode.

Modes of the Large Hat.

When the large hat is worn it is usually very large, sometimes with the brim much wider in back than in front. And where a woman finds a large hat more becoming she may quite properly select one. One large black hat was trimmed with a band of silver ribbon which fell through a slit in the brim to two large loops over the right ear. Many a gracefully draped veil is used in this same manner.

In fact, this tendency of all trimming to go to the right was carried out to such an extent by one smart Parisian that she wore a long sinuous earring on the right ear only, leaving the left ear quite unadorned. It hardly seems likely that many Americans will carry this fashion to such an extreme but it does show how strong this tendency is.

However, these large hats do not as yet enjoy the popularity of the smaller one. And though they might burst into highest favor and day, it is hardly possible that the fashion will continue for long.

With the soft, dainty summer dresses the hat is usually softer, though there may be a little stiffening in the brim. It is a very charming fashion, too, to keep our suffer hats for our more tailored costume. And a soft crushed little model is so lovely with a dainty dress.

Evening Hat to Return.

It is rumored that the evening hat, which has been absent so long, is returning to high favor. It is really quite a natural development when one stops to think about it. Bandeaux have been growing wider and more elaborate than ever. So some clever milliner just put a tulle top on a wide bandeau and the evening hat was in vogue. And after it had gone that far naturally little tulle brims were added. This does not mean that the bandeau is going out. Just the opposite. For the wider and more elaborate the bandeau that is worn with a formal frock, the smarter the costume. It just shows our tendency to wear some sort of head covering at every possible moment. This desire for headgear is certain to last while the bobbed heads are growing out, for it involves many a problem of hair dressing. And the person to whom the simple smooth style of coiffure is unbecoming—and unfortunately there are many such—is sure to follow this fashion with enthusiasm.

Veils Winning Favor.

The veil is enjoying high favor this season and quite deservedly. On a windy, blustery day of early spring how trimly smart and dashing is the wearer of a veil. And how great is red-composed when she knows that her hair is not straggling about her face but is just as it was when she last peeped into a mirror. The graceful folds of the draped lace veil seen so often in the afternoon are very flattering, too. And countless are the ways in which such a veil may be draped. A gold veil covering the crown of a brown hat and falling in loops close to the face would surely be a prized addition to any wardrobe. Or a small hat may allow its veil to hang straight down in the back, but be draped up a little under the chin. This slight draping is held in place by pins placed close to the edge of the veil. Where these veils are worn the hat is very plain and without any other trimming. The veil itself is very elaborate. It may be beautifully figured at the edge or of soft delicate light color.

ingly and appropriately when he first puts aside dresses is the most difficult problem which any mother has to face. One very successful way to solve it is to let him wear a straight little suit of blue linen in which the straight kickers are fastened to the top by means of white linen edged with tiny narrow ruffling. Sometimes the kickers are fastened to the top by means of large pearl buttons a couple of inches apart which pursue their way about the waist.

The smallest possible hat for a little girl is a small affair with a rounded crown and the narrowest kind of a brim. It might well be called a stepping stone between the bonnet and the hat.

Socks and flat little single strap slippers are the smartest footwear for children. Patent leather slippers for "best" and gull leather or white buckskin for their energetic hours of play.

LEADER REVIEWS LABOR TROUBLES

Declares Labor Owes it to Herself to Refrain From Being Negative.

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON—"Labor should do itself the justice of ceasing to be negative, anti-capitalist," thinking only of its shares," writes Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor Opposition in the House of Commons in the February issue of the Socialist Review. His article is called "The Outlook for Trade Unionism."

"Every counselor who advises labor contrary to the spirit of social co-operation is misleading it," continued Mr. MacDonald.

"The building up of an organization devised exclusively to fight capitalism is an error. The fight against capitalism has to be carried on by applying a better spirit than that of capitalism into social and industrial problems and difficulties."

After stating that political and moral weapons alone can undermine the walls of capitalism, Mr. MacDonald adds:

"Organized labor, trade union executives, parliamentary parties, should each in their own way and in respect to their own trades and jobs make the conspiracy of capitalism against the community—not always against the labor party—clear. This has to be accomplished by a persistent explanation of the work of capitalism, its watered stocks, its flotation expenses, its useless payments, its methods of keeping up prices, and such like."

✓ In conclusion, Mr. MacDonald says: "Capitalism is decaying owing to its moral bankruptcy. It is at war with social production, with common well-being, and with the spiritual love of liberty. If the labor struggle is conducted in the same spirit as the capitalists have shown, and on a class basis, the decisive battles will be fought with economic weapons alone and labor will gain no great victory; but as soon as labor frees its mind so as to come under the influence of the spirit of its historic role to create a social economic organization that will secure liberty and make a single minded pursuit of commonwealth interests practicable, it will equip itself with weapons and hold a position which will make its final victory certain."

Dr. Maria Otto, a native of Wurzburg, recently appeared in the Munich courts as the first female lawyer ever to practice in Germany.

Miss Maxine Naylor, G. R. Naylor, Jr., W. T. Wauson, and Burt McKel will return today from Tulsa where they have been in attendance upon the Baptist State B. Y. P. U. Convention which has been in session for three days. They went as delegate from the local B. Y. P. U. of the First Baptist Church.

SIMPSON'S

The Shopping Center of Ada

How far are we removed from the day when the style for children was just a miniature of the style for their parents. And it is really quite recently that becomingly childish fashions have been developed for children. But now the mode for children has a distinct and separate existence. Of course, now and then it is influenced by the older fashions, but it does not follow them slavishly. When one thinks back just a few hundred years to the time when little girls of six or seven wore frocks which reached the floor, we realize what a long way we have traveled.

It is on this question of length that the childish mode has definitely decided to go its own way, for their little frocks and coats are quite as short as ever.

Party Frocks of Chiffon
When the little girl under ten goes to a party, she is quite likely to wear a frock of finely pleated rose-colored chiffon edged with fur. Or she may choose a delicate pink crepe de chine with an edging of tiny ruffles and tucks. Or if she would look quite crisply smart she may choose to be clad in the most delicate of filmy blue taffeta. The younger she is the less apt is she to have any belt line on her frocks. They will just hang short and full from the shoulder. Her sleeves will be quite tiny—hardly more than caps and she is certain to favor the bateau neck.

If she is a little older, her frock will have a long blouse with the belt line just at the top of the hip. When this little miss attends a party it may well be in a youthfully crisp taffeta frock of a sunshiny yellow trimmed only with a quaint little garland of flowers about the hips. Or if she likes the softness of chiffon she may wear a frock whose long blouse is of a heavenly blue taffeta with a three tiered skirt of softly ruffled blue chiffon.

White Linen or Playtime
When the younger miss spends a glorious sunshiny morning playing on the sands or in some cool shaded wood she will be quite the fashion if she wears a white linen frock with yellow linen binding the Peter Pan collar, the short, full cap sleeves and buttoned front. This frock also hangs straight from the shoulder. With it are worn white linen bloomers to match which are also edged with yellow. All the light shades of linen are very becoming to children.

Rose, bright yellow, a green and blue linen with white linen trimmings made in this straight simple style are charming for children. The gaily checked gingham are also very appropriate for these simple little frocks. As she grows older, the young girl of under fifteen is very apt to copy her older sister's clothes from her older sister's simplest sports attire. A straight pleated skirt, brilliantly checked, worn with a single toned sweater and a Peter Pan collar is a very suitable costume.

Three Piece Suits
However, if she requires something a bit dressier than this, she might have a three-piece suit. The dress of one model of this type has a long, straight blouse with a bateau neck and a finely pleated skirt. It is worn with a straight, close-fitting little jacket.

The simpler the dance frock of the girl of this age, the better dressed she is.

Green taffeta fashions just such a frock which is smocked at the waist and hipline. A bouquet of old blue and green flowers at the waist has long streamers of ribbon which reach almost to the bottom of the skirt.

For the Little Man
To clothe the young man becom-

The Buckled Foot of Fashion

Nowadays one of the first dictates of fashion is becomingness, so it is sometimes hard to lay down any hard and fast rule about what "they" will wear and what "they" will not wear. The wise woman adapts the style to her type and gives little individual variations which make our costumes so much more interesting.

So if one should say that every slipper must have a buckle, the next day one might see the smartest of slippers quite unadorned. However, if any rule could be laid down with absolute finality, it would be that slippers must be buckled.

We dress so much more artistically nowadays—particularly in regard to our footwear. A smart frock is never really charming unless everything else goes with it. So in the clever choosing of our footwear we change a gown into a complete costume.

For Evening Wear
The most elaborate and strikingly beautiful silk brocades are the newest materials for the evening slipper. And the effect of these varicolored, rich looking slippers below a simply cut frock is really unusually beautiful. Many shades are to be seen mingling in each slipper, but the predominating tone matches or, at an rate, harmonizes with the frocks. Gold or silver kid frequently forms the heels and the trimming of these slippers, but as often as not the slipper is entirely of the brocade.

However popular these slippers may be, gold or silver cloth, either plain or brocaded is still seen to fashion the slippers for many of the smartest.

As for the put of the evening slipper, your choice is practically unlimited. Some have tiny straps which seem to almost wind themselves about the ankle, while the plain slipper is very new.

Buckles of Beauty
The plain slipper relies entirely upon an elaborate crystal buckle for its adornment. And so magnificent and so large are these buckles that it needs no more. And large as they are, the newest thought is to have them fluted or ruffled tongue of the material. One slipper even had such a tongue composed of tiny colored feathers.

The buckle for the strap slipper is much smaller and set on the strap just at the top of the instep. Another way is to have the buckle placed at the fastening. But one thing is certain, whatever style the slipper may be, the heel is sure to be very high.

Afternoon Slippers
The smartest afternoon slippers first make sure that the toe is of patent leather. After that countless variations of style are offered them. They may be all of patent leather. But probably they will have inserts of some colored suede—usuall some shade of tan or gray. When these colors are chosen to harmonize with the frock, the result is an extremely smart costume. The cut steel buckle is the one which is used with these and, in fact, all afternoon slippers.

The all-suede slipper, while not the newest, is still in very good style. Sometimes they yield to the vogue of patent leather by having a patent leather heel and binding next to the sole. Or perhaps the patent leather will be found as a saddle strap.

For Street Wear
For walking and for wear with a street frock, the low heeled strap slipper of a combination of suede and black leather helps to make a stunning costume. One model which is very good is of suede with black leather toes and heels and a black leather strap holds close to the foot a large tongue of suede. Of course, if you choose a low heeled walking oxford you will make no mistake—particularly if that oxford be of a suede and leather combination.

For the softly shimmering frock of some lazy summer afternoon, the dainty white slipper of kid, buckskin or linen is the appropriate finish. When these afternoon slippers have straps they are pied now and then in some bright colored kid.

With the sorts costume the buckskin oxford with a leather saddle strap will be most frequently seen.

Wrappy Silk Coats in Novelty Crepe Weaves

By MARY BROOKS PICKEN

WRAPPY coats of silk, especially in the novelty of crepe weaves, seem especially appropriate for summer or afternoon wear as they are suggestive of elegance without a great deal of weight. Kasha cloth is also appropriate and especially desirable for early spring wear.

This lovely model is of brown Canton crepe embroidered in tones of tan and brown, the thread being wool and flax, couched on to give a flat, smooth effect. The simplicity of the collar and sleeves is characteristic of the new coat styles. If a serviceable coat is desired, the embroidery may be omitted and plain cloth used with a plain or decorative lining.

Hand-dyed crepe in smart, mottled pattern is used to drape the side crown of this medium sized poke of tan felt.

Austrian Archduke Would Renounce His House to Gain Lands

(By the Associated Press)

PRAGUE.—To retain possession of valuable property, mines and factories, in Silesia, Frederick, at one time an Archduke of Austria, was ready to renounce his relationship to the house of Hapsburg. He pleaded in the courts of Czechoslovakia to be classed as a commoner, but the judges ruled otherwise and, under the decision that all properties of the Hapsburgs were to be confiscated, he has lost all his holdings without a cent of compensation.

Frederick is an uncle of the late Austria emperor, Charles. He exerted, in the old days, a measurable influence in the family which dominated central European politics for the last seven centuries.

Knife-Plaited Frock of Old Blue Crepe de Chine

By MARY BROOKS PICKEN

THE straight lines of the twelve year-old harmonize perfectly with the simple dress illustrated. The dress, cut in one piece, as it is, and knife plaited, provides for fullness. This is held in place by an interesting belt with shawl ties to break the line and shorten the figure.

Many frocks for young girls are shown without sleeves. This model allows for a dainty lace sleeve, if desired, and makes possible its omission with no inconvenience.

Old-blue crepe de Chine, clover-color crepe de Chine, or voile in either color would be attractive for such a dress.

JEWELRY HELPS TO BRING OUT LINES OF DRESS BEAUTY

As the coiffure follows the fashion of the frock and shows more and more artful simplicity, the bandeaux become more elaborate. Just as many gowns seem but a gacefully becoming background to the chains, bacelets, buckles and earrings which are the strikingly vivid notes of the smart costume, so the simple coiffure allows the bandeau to display its full splendor.

Particularly new are the broad gold or silver bands, many of them intricately woven and rising to becoming little peak over the forehead. Others are gorgeously trimmed with pearls or flowers which wend their fascinating way across the head and fall in two clusters over the ears. Less extreme, but quite as lovely, are the narrow bandeaux of silver leaves or tiny ostrich strand flowers in delicate shades to match the frock. For the woman who is a little older, the constructive bandeau of jet gives a most becoming dignity.

Fashionable Types or Earrings
And almost as necessary to the complete costume are the earrings. In fact, unless the bandeau has clusters over the ears, earrings are usually seen with them. And impossible as it may sound, they are growing longer and more elaborate than ever. Stones of every imaginable color and with a strange barbaric charm about them vie with onyx and the clear beauty of crystal for greatest popularity. And fashioned of gold are some Baccante-like clusters of grapes. Those countless little fine gold chains, sometimes set with pearls, which are often seen dangling from the ear of the woman of fashion, have grown so long that they actually sweep her shoulder.

As for the new necklace, many stone never heard of are to be found of which are worn with matching earrings, every color and every stone in them in daring and unusual combinations. In reality it is in her chains and necklaces, this season that a woman expresses individuality. They give a dash of color and a charming sophistication to the simplicity of the frock. Jade is as smart as ever, but crystal and onyx are the newest fad of Paris.

Bracelets are the Vogue
Naturally this year when jewelry and novelty jewelry is all-important, bracelets are quite the vogue. The upper arm bracelet has always been beautiful, but it is particularly becoming with sleeveless frocks. Some of them are of wide carved dark shell, to accentuate the white loveliness of an arm while others are of many strands of lustrous pearls. And about the wrist are many bracelets of single slender strands, perhaps of pearls, lapis, onyx, amethyst—or any becoming, colorful stone. Sometimes on a slim wrist you will see a narrow black cord ending in pendants which match the earrings.

But whichever way your particular fancy may lead you, one thing is certain—novelty jewelry of some sort must add its piquant touch to our costume.

PAULS VALLEY.—Fifty per cent reduction of a flock of 160 white leghorn hens on the farm of Mark Ashurst here, increased the percentage of layers from 20 to 75 per cent and increased the number of eggs laid by 25 per cent, according to A. P. Burge, Garvin county agricultural agent. Before the culling, he added, 160 hens produced an average of thirty eggs daily while now 80 hens produce more than forty eggs daily.

BONES OF HEROES TO BE DISTURBED

Burial Grounds for Heroes of Revolution to be Changed.

TUCKAHOE, N. Y.—Whitened bones of 195 American heroes of the Revolution, unearthed recently in a sandy trench in the "Y" of the old state cross-roads near here, are to be removed to a memorial plot on the highest knoll in Tucka-hoe Hills, to rest under a monument inscribed with the history of their last battle.

One of the 195 already has been taken from the trench and entombed as the "Unknown Soldier of the Revolution" beneath the floor of the Tucka-hoe Village Hall. He was placed in the tomb on the 191st anniversary of the birth of his commander-in-chief, George Washington, after exercises similar to those of the "Unknown" of the World War, at Arlington Cemetery, were held by the townsfolk.

Village officials have started a fund to purchase the plot of ground in which the 195 patriots, including the "Unknown" entombed February 22, will be reburied next Washington's birthday. They plan also to erect a granite shaft over the graves and it will be unveiled the day of reburial.

This little village of hills and dales which lies some 20 miles from the heart of New York City, was a great skirmishing ground between the Rebel and British forces during the Revolution. General Washington maintained a temporary headquarters in the old inn at the crossroads. The inn still stands.

Across the road from it, and at the very point of the crossroads, is a spring. Rising back of the spring is a hill, some 200 feet high, and arounds the hill winds the road.

Village historians say that a party of American irregulars, returning from a foraging expedition into the hills, stopped at the inn to rest and eat. General Washington had been at the inn only several days before.

A heavy force of British regulars surrounded the inn and began an advance upon it. Their movement being protected by several pieces of small artillery on the hill behind the spring. The commander of the American outfit, realizing that he had been caught, walked from the inn carrying a white flag and offered, it is recorded, to surrender. This offer, the town history says, was refused, whereupon the American shot the British offer dead and was himself killed. The British then fired on the Americans, and being greatly superior in numbers, decisively defeated them, killing 195.

A few of the Americans escaped. Their dead comrades were stripped of most of their clothing and left where they fell. News of the attack reached General Washington and he sent reinforcements for the irregulars, but they arrived too late.

They buried the 195 patriots in a long sandy trench across the road from the inn, placing their feet toward the east and their arms at their sides, as all fallen warriors are buried. A huge boulder was rolled over the trench to mark the spot.

The trench was discovered by a contractor, excavating for a residence. A few bits of revolutionary army equipment, enough for their identification as Americans, were found. By the bones of one was found an ivory case, and inside it, a slightly faded miniature of a beautiful woman.

With the coming of spring what woman does not feel a longing for exquisitely lovely colors after the somber winter ones? The softening air and the first sunny days suggest the glorious colorings of summer. So now Dame Fashion, ever capricious and inconstant, selects new shades for her favorites. And one of the first of these shades is green—Lanvin green. Even the color is that soft, delicate green like fresh, unown grass. How exquisitely refreshing it will be on the hot days to come. Green suggesting, as it does, fresh growing things and the soft shadows of trees, makes you feel and look deliciously cool. And still another favorite is Madeleine rose. It is an old saying that a woman in love longs for a rose-colored gown and fresh violets. Perhaps instinctively she knows how flattering is this delicately warm shade. But this summer when a riot of color is all the rage, all the light, bright shades are quite in vogue.

But these colors, instead of being in the flat tones which have predominated for so many months, are found in the most intricate and unusual designs on a neutral background. In fact, this passion for the allover design is the most distinctive characteristic of the season. Almost every fabric used is printed, beaded or embroidered over every seemingly available inch of its surface.

Long Lines Newest
The gracefully becoming, long lines are still the newest—yet they are not the same, for in some subtle way we seem to grow cleverer in our ability to drape them with more artful simplicity. Oftentimes the newer frocks are caught into an elaborate buckle on the left hip—buckles of strangely wrought gold or clear, gleaming crystal or richly colored stones. At other times they are caught into knots of the material, forming a little draping on that side.

Simplicity in Frocks

An evening frock of the approved Greek simplicity which is most becoming to the slender figure has a deep "V" neck in front and back, the frock hangs straight but both the back and front are draped into a huge pearl ornament on the left hip. From this ornament hang long strands of pearls which almost reach the ground. Underneath this ornament the skirt opens to show the gleaming silver of an undershirt. It is in clever ways like this that the long, straight lines are made possible for dancing or walking without the graceless, mincing step of the too tight skirt.

Modes of Afternoon Frocks

It is on the glorious sunny days of summer when one watches the sunlight sparkling on the waves and the yellow sands or spends a deliciously lazy afternoon in the cool shadows of the country club porch, that the season shows her loveliest interpretations of the mode for afternoon frocks. It is on just such an occasion that one will be permitted to see a beautiful little georgette frock, made quite simply with a light blouse and a little draping at the side, where the material falls in a point just below the hem line. But it will owe its smartness to the myriad beads which gleam and glisten on its soft, dull surface. Perhaps this frock will be sleeveless, for the sleeveless afternoon frock is quite the rage, but it will be just as much in fashion if its whimsical wearer happens to prefer a little short, tight sleeve or one of those wing like extensions which have recently been serving as sleeves.

Silk Crepe Frocks Shown

If one wanders further on such a day, one is certain to meet one of those gaily patterned silk crepe frocks. It is in these frocks that the mode fully expresses its present love of color in strange interwoven designs. These allover patterns are on a white or neutral background, but the brightest, gaudiest colors lend their decorative touch to the intricate traceries of the design.

Voile for Sultry Weather

The cool freshness of voile is so alluring on sultry days, so if you choose you can express the mode charmingly in a frock of voile quite as brilliantly figured as the silk ones. Other dainty little frocks achieve this same effect by having the figures embroidered.

It is not in the least surprising that the coat frock is a very great favorite again, for it would be difficult to conceive of anything either more stunning or more practical. However, they have certain marked differences from the coat frocks we wore last year.

Now and again one sees a slender little miss with a graceful circular skirt, but more often the skirt is straight with first a circular flare introduced into it. One charming coat frock of serge has a circular flare of crepe set in at the closing of the frock. This not only smart, but extremely practical as it gives freedom for walking without destroying the straight one-piece effect. The wide rever which covers almost the entire front of the waist is of this same crepe.

Unusual and Varied Sleeve.

But doubtless the most cleverly varied and unusual part of the afternoon frock is its sleeves. The long, tight sleeve is the greatest favorite of the coat frock. But it must never be a plain, tight sleeve. Far from it. Over some long, slender hand will fall a circular cuff reaching to the knuckles. Or in a gay calligraphic fashion this circular cuff will be turned back forming a gauntlet. Then another tight sleeve admiring this gauntlet fashion will assume three gauntlets whose combined efforts almost reach the elbow. Or a favored way is to have three circular flares turned down, the top one a few inches below the elbow and the lowest one falling over the hand. The sleeve of the satin or chiffon frock may start out to be long and tight, but at the elbow it is very apt to change its mind and end by being full and flowing, quite as fashionable, however, it may be a full flowing sleeve straight from the shoulder.

The three-piece suit is still in high favor for spring. It is such a convenient and becoming costume, particularly for afternoon, when one drops into a restaurant for a tea or goes calling. The lovely blouses which peep forth as one opens the jacket make really a very dressy costume, appropriate for almost any and every function of the afternoon.

An almost limitless choice is offered your fancy when you are choosing the blouses for one of these suits. If your taste inclines to the Oriental, a blouse of Persian patterned silk will suit the mode as well as your personality. Of course it will be long waisted, cut to fit snugly about the hips or gathered into a tightly fitted band.

Now and again a button cleverly placed will hold the jacket so snugly about the hips that it has a tendency toward a slight blouse or perhaps it would be quite frankly a little blouse and gathered into a tight band at the hips. With these jackets the line of the skirt is straight. There may be a little draping at one side, but not a circular flare.

Variations in these Suits

As often as not the three-piece suit consists of a dress instead of a skirt and a costume blouse.

Whether you golf or whether you motor or whether you are just an interested spectator on the sidelines of sports, of course, you are wearing sports clothes. For the sports costume, which year by year has been becoming more and more popular, has reached the topnotch of fashion and is just the thing to be worn almost every hour of the day. It may be because we are more keen for sports, it may be try club, but surely one great reason for the ever-present custom for its youthful dash and smartness. It is so unusually becoming to every age and type.

Jaquette a Sport Favorite

The Jaquette or overblouse which was worn so much last season is here in a new form for sports. Fashioned of various novelty cotton materials all vividly figured, or of colorful ratine, they bid fair to be in high favor for morning on the links.

Among the newest sweaters, for the women actively engaged in spots are rather mannish ones. Many of these are checked in a tiny diamond shape pattern with a plain border or sometimes with plain sleeves also.

Of course, the high round neck sweater is still very good. And even more daintily original are the strange designs which encircle it. In addition to the American Indian designs there are new and even more gorgeously elaborate figures. The slip-on sweaters also show the allover diamond-shaped checks. But whatever kind of a sweater you choose one thing is certain—if you are slim it must be beltless.

Finely Pleated Kasha Cloth

There is a lithe grace about finely pleated Kasha cloth which makes it particularly suitable for our more active hours. In white, gray or a soft tan, worn with vividly patterned blouses or sweaters, it makes a costume, which will be seen frequently at the most fashionable country clubs. And as beautifully lined as the rainbow are the figured silk crepe skirts, fashion's latest creation. Of course, these are particularly lovely with the single tone blouses. The new wool or silk-and-wool skirts are severely distinguished by unusual button hole loops and pockets, and now and then drawn work.

Handkerchief Completes Wardrobe

But no mention of the sports costume is even half begun until one has heard all about the handkerchief—for in all verity it has seized the wardrobe. The more gaudily colored these silk handkerchiefs—for that is the handkerchief's newest form—the smarter they are. Some are tied loosely about the neck in true cowboy fashion with the knot in front or on the shoulder. Others daintily knotted about the hips form a fascinating girdle for a longwaisted frock.

For Trim Ankle

The bewildering array of countless styles which are placed before us in such profusion nowadays make it possible for a woman to use so much more artistic imagination in expressing her personality as well as her taste. And of these greatly varied offerings, hosiery is far from being the least.

The plain black silk stocking

which was worn for so long by the smartly dressed woman is scarcely ever seen nowadays. Chiffon with its fine, sheer beauty is seen whenever a plain stocking is worn, and strange as it may sound, if you wish black do not buy black. The clever woman chooses gunmetal. This shade looks black when it is worn, but it makes the hose much more expensively fine. And with a black frock and shoes, the effect is wholly charming. But black is the only frock with which black hose are worn. If your frock be any shade of gray or tan, the stockings should match it even when they are worn with black shoes. If your shoes are of colored suede or have sued insets, of course, the hose must match the shoes. With a very dark dress it is far better to have the hose of a lighter shade than the frock. And these colored hose are quite correct with a black street frock. For the ideal of the mode is still the fawn colored stocking. For dressier wear the lace clock is quite the thing in chiffon, though the plain chiffon hose are appropriate at all times.

For Sport Wear

For sports wear the silk have given way to the imported English silk and wool stockings. They are much more practical for summer than the all wool and being much softer, many women find them far more comfortable.

And in such fascinating colors can these hose be found, that our ankles are going to be more charmingly clad than ever. These colors offer ample opportunity to have our hose match either our sweaters or our sport frocks. For the fad for the matching of hose is carried into the world of sports.

But if you do not choose to wear these gay colors, you will look perfectly stunning if you pick out those with large diagonal checks of all shades of gray or tan. At times these silk and wool hose are cloaked or else they have drop-stitch stripes. Seldom are they perfectly plain.

Of course, with the silk sports frock or sports skirts the silk hose must be worn either in white, light gray or fawn, with matching shoes. But on the golf links or tennis court, wool is the thing.

Men Blossom out in new Spring Styles

Simplification seems to rule the men's clothing industry—simplification in style in fabric and in pattern. Conservatism, with few variations, appears to have the call this spring and summer.

The jazz models, which made such a hurrah last year, and which went strong in some sections of the country, but were rejected in other parts, apparently passed the height of popularity and now are on the down grade. While a few makers, who were successful in putting out the jazz output, will continue along these lines, the better manufacturers have turned down these styles almost completely.

There will, however, be shown a variety of these freakish styles, but the production is so small that it is almost insignificant. No doubt the death knell has been rung.

Three Variations Noted
Two distinct variations—possibly three—will be noted in the new styles for young men. The ultra dresser will wear very fitted models. High waist high girth, that is, a short collar, high lapel, high chest effect, slim waist, long vent and long appearing skirts are the principal features. The effect of the longer skirts makes the coat appear longer, which is not the case, as the length is about the average.

Rope shoulders also will be a noteworthy characteristic on clothes of this type. Some coats are made with a high outside cash pocket. There will be both notch and peak lapels but the lapels will be shorter much shorter than in past seasons. Two and three buttons will be used.

College Type of Clothes
Next comes the college type of clothes, which will be of softer construction than heretofore, with low collars, short lapels single breasted rounding fronts, three and four button coats, worn buttoned. The three-button coat seems to have the call.

This coat is of the same dimensions as the four, except that the buttons are spaced wider. Vests are cut straighter across the bottom and the trousers also are cut straight, that is, the same size at both knee and bottom and worn with cuff.

Trousers Cut Straight
Such suits will also display trousers cut straight. Some, however—those from the best makers—are regular in shape, but there is an outlet on both inside and outside seams permitting alteration, in the event the customer wants them wide from the knee down.

The sport styles, which came in stronger than ever last year, promise to continue in favor with good dressers, particularly the four-piece suits. Such suits are adaptable for both business and sport wear. The business man may wear the suit to the office and can change to kickers at the golf club, if he so desires.

Belts and Pleats Again
Half and three-quarter belts are winning the greatest vote, while spring pleats, like those worn in regular golf suits, also are favored by a certain clientele. There are many variations of the sport styles and all of them have a following. Patch pockets and plain pockets, will be seen on the majority of the suits, while the crescent pocket, which had quite a play several years ago is regarded as a back number.

In patterns, stripes have become almost as staple as the Chesterfield is in the overcoat family. Stripes in shades of blue, oxfords and grays will be more noticeable than ever. That fact that most of the fabrics in which stripes appear are light in weight makes clothes made of such fabrics wearable almost twelve months of the year, and hence there is an added reason for their success.

Checks to Have Following
Checks, which came into vogue several years ago with a rush, will have a large following and many of these patterns will be found among the sport suits as well as among the more conservative styles. Shepherd plaids, herringbones in blue, brown and gray stripes, Glen Urquhart, Tartan checks and over-plaids will command a large following.

Despite the fact that diamond weaves were shown more than ever last season, makers are coming forth with another selection of them this year in the hope of forcing popularity. It is rather questionable whether men will see such patterns as the thing for spring.

Palm Beach in Lead
Palm Beach promises to lead the procession in midsummer fabrics, as in other years. The cheapness of such material, together with improved styles has helped put this fabric across with greater force than ever. For a time Palm Beach cloth was on the wane, but better makers secured this fabric, put their skilled journeymen to work and turned out unusually fine clothes.

The increasing vogue of discarding the heavier wooled suits for something light and airy has also helped other cool-weather fabrics. Among them are mohairs, home-spuns, lightweight flannels, crases, rich pongees, shantung, together with a long list of fabrics possessing specially coined names.

The topcoat for spring will show a leaning toward the box of full drape, with set-in sleeves. Then, too, the topcoat with the raglan shoulders, forty-four inches long, with belt all around also will win great favor. The first coat mentioned will be shown in both button through and fly front. The third group consists of the always present Chesterfield.

In raincoats, the popular gabardine leads the field, in plain or belted models.

CHICAGO SEES NO CHANGE IN WINTER TEMPERATURE

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO, March 11.—Winter in Chicago up to March 1 was the exact normal winter average for the city, 27.5 degrees, determined by observations over a fifty year period according to Henry J. Cox, federal meteorologist. December was slightly below normal, January considerably above, and February considerably below.

Chicago has had but five days with temperature below zero, one in December and four in February, the records show. The lowest was eight below on February 4.

Precipitation was considerably below normal, and snow fall was but 14.8 inches, compared with a normal of 26.1 inches.

WHIPPING POSTS REVIVED TO CURB WIFE BEATERS

(By the Associated Press)
BUFFALO.—The whipping post as a restraining influence on wife-beaters is favored by the probation officers of this city. Their opinion was expressed during the hearing recently of an exceptionally brutal case. Serious cases of wife-beating in which the women carried the marks for days or weeks average about 50 a year in this city, and there are frequent "repeaters."

"Flogging is the only remedy for these brutes," says William T. Glavin, chief probation officer. The last is being used in Delaware and Canada, and I would like to see it adopted in New York."

Bad whiskey figured in most recent cases of wife-beating, the court records show.

Mexico Already Turning Thoughts Toward Future Election; Revolution off

(By the Associated Press)

MEXICO CITY.—Assuming that Mexico will be without revolution during the next 22 months, a new president of the republic will be elected by popular vote in September, 1924. But already there are political murmurings, possible candidates are being discussed, and at least one ambitious individual has announced his candidacy.

Party lines have never been tightly drawn in Mexico and political alliances are made and unmade overnight as the exigencies of the occasion demand. Therefore, it is difficult to say at present just what well defined groups will be in the field to contest for high national honors next year.

Among political observers it is considered an undoubted fact that President Obregon, Secretary of Interior Calles, and Secretary of Treasury de la Huerta will stand as a unit in the next election. President Obregon is barred by an article of the constitution from contesting for re-election. Secretary Calles, considered by many as his logical successor, will doubtless enter the race unless his health, which of late has given him much concern, forces him to abandon politics altogether. In the event that Secretary Calles is eliminated it is believed that Secretary de la Huerta former provisional president, will be the administration choice runs as a cooperist, which party now claims President Obregon as a member, or as an independent depends entirely on politics as they pertain at the time the active campaign opens.

At any rate the Cooperistas will enter a man in the race, and if an alliance with the administration is not made it is considered quite possible that Jorge Prieto Laurens, youthful leader of the party at present a federal deputy and the mayor of Mexico City, will be the party choice. Roque Gonzales Garza, a former president, is also talked of in this connection. Senor Laurens' youth may prove a barrier, but constitutional prohibitions have been winked at before when political expediency was urgent.

It is a foregone conclusion that the Conservatives, united either under one party or campaigning as several groups, will be represented in the race. The Catholic Party at the last election supported Alfredo Robles Dominguez, who in the old days acted as a sort of liaison officer between the Porfirio Diaz and the Francisco Madero groups. He contested with small hope of election and polled but a few votes. But the Catholics are growing in power, and the Filippi expulsion incident has served to unite them against the administration, especially against Secretary Calles. Dominguez may be their standard bearer but many predict the Catholics will ally themselves with the Fascists who as yet have not revealed their sentiments for president.

A review of possible conservative material finds these names always mentioned:

Francisco Leon de la Barra, former president and now living in France. Because of his present happy connection with the French government it is not believed he would even allow his name to be considered.

Alberto Garcia Granados, former army general under President Diaz, now living in the United States.

Manuel Calero, former ambassador at Washington and now in the United States.

Fernando Iglesias Calderon, former ambassador at Washington and at present a federal senator.

Pedro Lascruain, former president and now living quietly in Mexico City.

Carlos B. Zetina, a federal sena-

grand nephew of Emperor Maximilian of Mexico. He is a sound business man, sane in his political convictions, allied with no particular group, and well thought of by all here. He also has a certain standing in the United States due to his position as counselor to Secretary de la Huerta during the debt negotiations last summer. Felix F. Palavicini, editor of El Universal, also has been mentioned as a possible civilian candidate as opposed to the military.

Emeterio de la Garza already has formally announced himself from Havana as a presidential candidate, saying that Mexico needs a Messiah and that he proposes to be cast in that role. His antecedents, however, are not such as to lend seriousness to his announcement. It is also assumed that Senor Miranda y Zufiga, perennial candidate, who has contested in every election since the early days of the Diaz regime, will again enter himself.

Issues and platforms have never intruded much in Mexican politics, where the contest is largely personal. In a general way, relations with the United States will figure in party declarations, with constitutional reforms, particularly in regard to Article 27 and the agrarian law, as points of discussion.

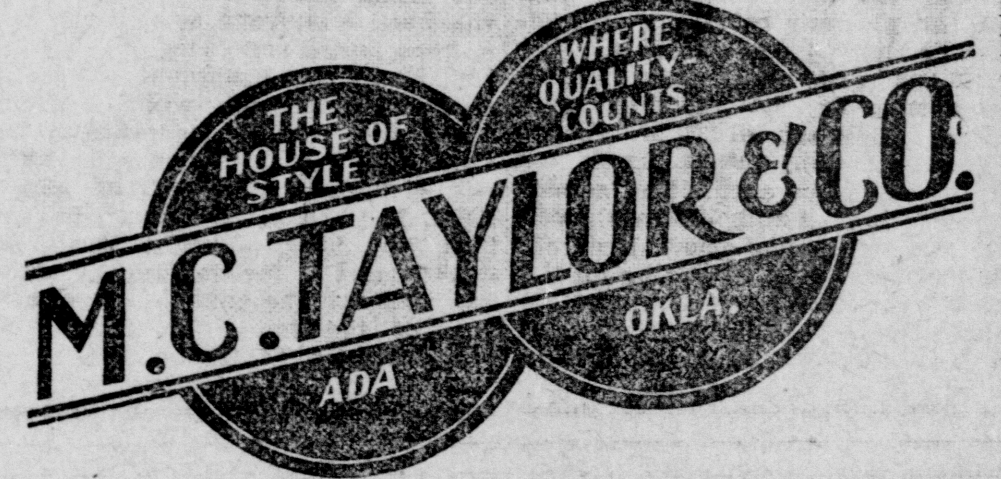

The accidental death rate of America is nearly double that of Great Britain.

HABERDASHERY ON THE CALENDAR FOR SPRING

While there is a tendency to slightly higher prices for men's haberdashery this spring, the advance is partially offset by better quality merchandise. Prices have reached the point of stabilization and the wild fluctuations of war days and post-war days are a thing of the past.

During the halcyon days the cost of men's accessories was just about twice that of today. The $25 shirt, for example, may be purchased for $12 or $13. Neckwear marked at $2 is now down to $1.50 and the range of prices is correspondingly lowered throughout.

White Silk Shirts Popular
While the silk shirt has been making desperate efforts to regain its war-day popularity, the march of progress has been quite slow in the last two years. The white silk shirt will lead the field, of course, but there is a tendency for plain colored silks to come back in some of the more durable weaves. Among them are baby broadcloth and jerseys. Pleated effects also promise to have a large call.

Madras, oxford cloth and the better grades of cotton shirts, particularly the English broadcloths, will be worn extensively. While the prices are a shade higher than a year ago, the workmanship is so improved that it borders on the custom-tailored variety.

Good Selection of Fiber Silks
There always will be a demand for the better fiber silk shirts, largely due to the fact that they offer a selection that good dressers like—at prices that do not tax one's income.

The collar-attached shirt which reached the height of popularity last year will go ahead with greater advancement than ever, if the prediction of makers is correct. In this special line there is a greater variety than ever, giving the customer a wider scope of selection. And one of the pleasing features is the fact that the workmanship has improved wonderfully—truly making this a gentleman's shirt.

Then, too, there will be shown more shirts with two button cuff bands, although the French cuff still leads the procession. Flannel shirts will have quite a following especially among those dressers who prefer the soft sort of flannel coming from England and France.

Gayer Effects in Neckwear
In neckwear the subdued color effects of sombre winter will give way to the vari-colored selection that usually blossoms forth in the spring. Silks from foreign fields—England, France, Switzerland and the far eastern countries—have flooded the market, but they are made up in the American styles and fashions. Among some of the shapes are the narrow cravats, adapted for the smaller collars which have become the popular vogue for warmer weather wear.

Because of their serviceability and durability, grenadines and knitted ties will be worn with greater frequency than ever. Many interesting and novel effects have been produced, giving the wearer a variety in selection that has never been offered before.

Matching some of the suit patterns will be tweed effects, which promises to "go across" with great demand. Foreign foulards also will come to the front stronger than ever.

Few Changes in Hosiery
Because of the limitations, hosiery will undergo few changes this year. Good silks, with clocks and other novel designs, particularly the full-fashioned selection, will be as popular as ever. For early spring casimere, camel's hair and imported worsteds will get the big play.

Naturally there will be a good selection of silk accordeons and embroidered effects, but the showing promises to be only normal. As for colors the shades and tones of each will be about the same as last season.

Same Story for Gloves

There have been very few changes made in glove styles and colors in the last few years and nothing novel is expected to be displayed this season. Cape, Arabian mocha, suede, buck and chamois in standard or off shades will furnish the greatest selection. Spear or embroidered backs are about the only ornamentations that will appear. The pearl button, however, is replacing the old time clasp.

The success of middy pajamas, otherwise known as the bachelor or buttonless pajamas, has been unusually tremendous. The ease with which men can slip into and out of such wearing apparel is one excellent reason. While colored effects and stripes had the call in past seasons, the tendency is toward plain colors or white. In silk pajamas the color scheme is prevalent, with frogs of contrasting tones.

Plain or pattern effects of madras, percales, crepes, chambrays, solsette and fiber silk will be among the fabrics in vogue.

Soft Collar is Favored
The non-wrinkable collar, now made by a number of concerns, have won the popular fabric of many a good dresser and will blossom forth much greater than ever this spring. The two-ply hard collar, with a slight roll, will be the chief competitor for popularity.

In other men's accessories, such as underwear, belts, jewelry, handkerchiefs, walking sticks, etc., there have been no decided changes.

When Straw Meets Felt

Men's hats for spring showing have undergone but slight changes from the styles shown and worn last spring, although there is an evident tendency toward the conservative type.

The hat problem is a very perplexing one to the woman, because of the rapid and almost overnight change in modes worn, which added to the regular seasonal variations keep them in constant dread to the milliner. Men, on the contrary find but little variation in hats with the exception of the seasonal changes, which come not for style but to give the wearer the latest in comfort. With the advent of each season new thoughts for the wearer's comfort are added to those already in vogue until one is prone to wonder when the end will come.

Hats of Extreme Light Weight
The manufacturers have taken the customer into deep concern this spring, and are offering hats of an extreme light weight. This characteristic will prevail in the straw for summer wear as well as in the spring hats. There was a strong tendency in that direction last year, but not until this year has the super light weightness been so evident and the manufacturers' thought been so practical.

Light colors will again lead the field in spring hats. Tans will predominate with pearly grays and light greens following closely. Bands to correspond will be the prevailing mode.

The shapes are virtually the same as those in vogue last year. The Fedora and Alpine shapes are being shown extensively in the older men's hats while the young fellows will turn to the diamond-shaped and dented in styles—all these, however, in very light weights. Few odd shapes are being shown the majority having a medium crown and brim.

Straws More Conservative
Straws for summer wearing are following in the footsteps of all other men's wearing apparel—holding fast to the conservative and less freakish type of a few years ago.

The light sailor is again slated for a big run. These will come in pure whites light browns and tans. The rough straws and loose weaves in very light weights are being shown very much. For the most part plain black bands or bands of contrast to the color of the hat will be worn with a sprinkling of the colored bands in stripes and dots.

No Changes in Panamas

Leghorns and Panamas will be worn, of course, and they, too, will come in light weights in all the new Optimo shapes. And Bangkoks, too, will be worn by the man who likes a real light weight summer straw. The conservative vogue of the season will also be very prominent in these styles of headwear.

The derby is always in good taste and is liked by the young man who wants to look a little aristocratic. The styles this year are splendid in that the odd shapes—small brim, large crown and vice versa—are not in good form and in place we have the conformity to the conservative characteristic of the season.

where Camp Custer sprang into a great cantonment, the hospital, with its thirty buildings, will spread over 500 acres. It is one of five for which congress appropriated $18,000,000. The hospital building program is under the direction of the Veterans' Bureau.

Two miles east of the government hospital site is located the American Legion Roosevelt hospital for the care of tubercular form or service men, with a capacity of 400 patients. The Veterans' Bureau hospital will have facilities for the treatment of 500 patients.

The government hospital unit will be built around what the blue prints call the "main building"—a commodious two-story structure, winged, with general wards on one side and wards for "disturbed" patients on the other. Directors' offices, rooms for various officers, dining rooms, operating rooms, electro-therapy, electro-radiograph, autopsy and dental rooms are in this building, as well as quarters for specialistic treatment and minor surgery.

At the west end of the hospital group will be located the cottage for tubercular patients, equipped with sleeping porches and the most modern methods of treating this disease.

The recreation building will contain an auditorium to seat 400 persons, with a stage and projection room for motion pictures. Card and billiard rooms will open off the main lobby.

There is a group of buildings for "continued treatment" cases, containing large day rooms on the first floor with wards above. Three separate buildings will provide accommodations for nurses, female attendants and male attendants. There will be separate structures for the vocational training shops, garage and repair shops.

By the use of hydrofluoric acid two men can now polish as much cut glass as 40 could before the new method was used.

Legion Signs for Action

Program of Achievement Mapped Out for Members as Summer Objective.

With five years of peace as a period to rehabilitate from the turmoil of war, Ada Legionnaires have grown from a handful of veterans, who were willing for the burden of organization to fall on their shoulders, to a commanding body in the affairs of the community.

During the short years since the war, much has been accomplished by those who agreed to take up the struggle of the ante-bellum days. A complete program of action had been worked out and members of the Legion pledged to bear their part in affairs.

During the early days of the foundation of the Legion here little progress was experienced by those in charge, ex-service men in many instances taking the stand that they were through with anything military after their gruesome experience on the mud-splattered fronts of France.

Soon the life of civilian excitement grew monotonous to veterans, who were formerly in the midst of happenings and they began to lend their aid in the perfection of an organization to better the aims and principals of the ex-service man.

The Norman Howard post, American Legion has grown gradually during the past four years and at the present time boasts of a membership of approximately 300 ex-service men, a representative number for the entire city population.

Today the Norman Howard post, American Legion stands as one of the largest fraternal orders of the city, with ties of fraternal interest greater than any order in the city. Today the Norman Howard Post, American Legion stands on the brink of the their objective, a permanent home that will serve as a monument to the heroes who have answered the final call in the name of Pontotoc county.

Memorial Hall Appropriated
The Memorial Convention Hall marks the turning point in the affairs of the Legion. Plans for the future center around the completion of construction of that edifice, which is scheduled for late summer.

The fight for the Memorial Hall marked the first big success of the Legion and the first full note of appreciation of the people of Ada. All plans for the future bear a two-fold purpose, one for the promoting of interest for "Buddy" and a life of service to the betterment of civic conditions.

The Legion will lay the corner stone for their own beautiful memorial, officials of state Legion Headquarters will be here to bestow the Legion rituals in a fitting ceremony on Memorial Day, May 30.

Efforts of the local post will tend toward the attracting of the state Legionnaires here in their 1924 state convention after the completion of their memorial hall. Ada Legionnaires believe that state Buddies will not deny this request for a proper dedication of their hall.

The Memorial Hall will be prepared for the 1924 convention and other conventions fostered by the city of Ada. The auditorium will be appropriately decorated. A large bronze Legion emblem will stand out over the opening of the hall with a welcome to everyone to enter. Legion quarters will be furnished to the sum of $3,000 and will constitute one of the most expensive and spacious clubrooms of any post in the state.

Several entertainments and benefit affairs have been given of late and are under plans for the coming months to raise necessary funds for the furnishing of the Legion quarters. One of the most notable of Legion entertainments of late was the play at the McSwain theatre last Thursday night. This play "The Girl from Out Yonder" will be presented again the coming Thursday night at the McSwain. Several benefit shows at local theatres have been given under the auspices of the Legion. One benefit dance has been given this month and until recently fights have been given under the auspices of the Legion but under the benefit of the Elks.

Other Events Sponsored
All boxing exhibitions will be staged by the local post, American Legion in the future and the post will assume active charge of the management of Arche Cooper, local boxer.

A novel cabaret dance will be staged here late in March by the Legion, which is destined to rival the scenes of "Gay Paree" of five years ago. Legionnaires will leave off no detail in affording Ada with the liveliest entertainment ever held at the City Hall.

Despite all plans for the future and the netertainment program outlined by officers of the Legion, a tendency on the part of members to forget to attend important meetings is a sad failing that must be remedied, according to Elbert Reed, post commander.

Commander Reed explains to "Buddy" that regular Legion meetings are enjoyable as well as beneficial and urges that a full attendance greet the efforts of post officers. Smokers, luncheons and little entertainments are held in connection with the meetings and afford those who attend with an enjoyable evening.

Legion Paper Published
Ada now boasts of the best post paper in the state in the "Ada Legionnaire," which recently made its appearance in behalf of the ex-

The latest effort of the local Legion post is in the organization of the Legion drum corp, another feature unknown to any other post in the state. The corp holds practice rehearsals on two nights each week. The purpose of the drum corps is purely to boost the local post as well as the city of Ada as it has been proven that a drum corp is the most conspicuous means of making noise. The local post is planning to send the corps to the state and national convention.

ONE DEATH AND ONE INJURY IN SHOOTING AFFRAY

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 17.—Mrs. Robert Strate is dead and F. F. Tanner, proprietor of a shoe shop, is believed fatally injured as the result of a shooting affray in a bakery in a leading residential section of the city today. Police declared that Tanner had shot the woman and then himself.

Mrs. Strate was left in charge of the bakery a few minutes by the proprietor. Hearing shots a few minutes later the proprietor rushed in to find the woman dead and Tanner lying on the floor. Tanner was taken to a hospital where it was said he is not expected to live.

SWEET POTATO GROWERS TO CUT YEAR'S ACREAGE

I. T. Hoggatt, secretary of the Truck Growers association of Union Valley states that about 15 cars of sweet potatoes were grown in his community last year of which 10 have been shipped and two or three more will be shipped shortly. The crop was cut short last year by the drought.

Mr. Hoggatt states that through marketing co-operatively in car lots the growers have done much better than would otherwise have been possible, but the price has been discouragingly low throughout the season and as a consequence the acreage will probably be reduced somewhat for the coming season.

Mr. Hoggatt said that from the acreage in Irish potatoes he judges that two or three cars will be raised.

This association is the first of its kind to be organized in the county. It has been in operation for four years and the members are sticking close to it.

REVENUE RAISING MEASURES REACH HOUSE DECISION

House Wades Into Several Matters as Last Days of

WAREHOUSE BILL OFF

Senate Acts on Fifty Measures
In Chase of House to Clear Calendar

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, March 17.—Two revenue raising measures were approved by the house today, one calling for a two cent tax on gasoline and the other levying a state income tax on corporations, associations and partnerships. The gasoline tax measure carried in decisive fashion on roll call, the final vote being 75 to 14.

Final action on the corporation income tax bill will be taken Monday, the delay being granted because a number of members interested in the proposed law returning to their homes over the weekend. Bill-busting against the measure broke down late today and it was advanced to the third reading.

Delay in reaching the two bills, the only important revenue raising measure of the session, virtually disappointed hope for adjournment of the session next Saturday. Observers took the view tonight that the legislature would be fortunate if it wound up its labor by April 1.

Five days must elapse after passage of revenue raising measures before adjournment can be taken. The gasoline tax bill will require at least three days to progress through the committee in the senate and then if passed promptly the five days required before adjournment would extend past Saturday.

The big supply measure, the institution bill and departmental bill still remained to be acted upon as well as a host of other important species of legislation.

Income Tax Bill Gains
Opponents of the income tax bill gave ground grudgingly as the measure was advanced in the committee section by section.

Some twelve members made amendment drives on the bill, but each proposed alteration was voted down.

Material increases in the present income tax statutes are proposed in the bill as a result of amendment attached by T. H. Wren of Okfuskee. As adopted by the house committee the schedule would be: One per cent on the first $10,000; two per cent on the next $10,000; three per cent on the next $20,000; four per cent on the next $30,000 and five per cent on all income in excess of $100,000.

Rates now in effect levy three-fourths of one per cent on the first $10,000; with a two per cent limit on incomes in excess of $50,000.

Dividends will be exempted when the net earnings are taxed under another amendment by Wren which was accepted. The bill provides that surety companies and national banks and telegraph companies would be excluded from the provision making the income tax law applicable to all corporations, associations, and partnerships.

An unsuccessful effort was made by W. Varnum of Seminole to obtain exemption of farm cooperative organizations. C. W. Miller of Hughes was ruled out of order when he jokingly offered an amendment to exclude farm labor reconstruction leagues.

Warehouse Problem Delayed
Final decision on the warehouse problem was delayed again today when it was agreed to report favorably both the Cordell bill and the Disney bill, leaving the question of which will be passed to final roll call. The Cordell bill, sponsored by the administration, holds a technical advantage over the W. E. Disney's measure as it will be voted on first.

A state real estate court would be created without power to license dealers under a bill by John Miller, advanced in the committee and passed to the third reading.

The committee also advanced the senate joint resolution appropriating $1,432 to pay for diseased cattle slaughtered by direction of the state board of agriculture.

Anna Lasker, league member from Oklahoma county, failed for the third time to obtain consideration of a bill providing minimum wage law for women.

It was understood that administration leaders would confer over the week end in an attempt to reach a second agreement on a tentative adjournment date. Indications point to at least another two weeks work before a halt can be called.

Senate Acts on 60 Bills
Wading into a stack of business before it the senate today acted on nearly fifty measures. A score of bills were passed and others advanced.

PROMINENTS HELD IN BOOZE PROBE

Jack Pickford And Sister Alleged Victims of Police Drag-net

(By the Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, March 17.—Revelation of "the most gigantic illegal liquor combination in the west" was forecast today by federal prohibition officers today after reviewing evidence which they state indicate that a number of prominent persons are patrons of the six alleged bootleggers caught in a raid Thursday night.

W. H. Doherty, head of the southern California federal prohibition enforcement bureau, announced that the names of at least twenty persons prominent in Los Angeles, including motion picture actors, both men and women, in a list taken from two of the alleged bootleggers, but made public only those of Jack Pickford and Mrs. Allan Forrest, known professionally as Lettie Pickford, brother and sister of Mary Pickford.

Two checks, signed by Pickford were in the possession of the two accused men, one of the alleged bootleggers admitting that he had made two sales of liquor to the actor.

Doherty summoned Pickford to his office to question him concerning "certain matters," officers said, but when the actor arrived with his attorneys the interview failed. Pickford later announced that he was willing to give officers or the federal grand jury, which is expected to take charge of the matter within two weeks a statement whenever desired.

Bergdoll Was Hero—Teacher Believes

(By the Associated Press)
NEW ORLEANS, March 17.—Al Jolson is wrestling champion; Francis Scott Key, a woman who wrote poems; Bob McNutt was quoted as the heavyweight champion, and the trade name of a widely known food product was named the wife of a character in the replies of members of the faculty of Newcomb college, a young woman's educational institution in their replies in an "intelligence test" submitted to them yesterday by the senior class. The students recently had undergone several examinations to determine their knowledge of everyday subjects and nettled at the results they challenged the faculty to undergo a similar test. Twenty-three of the 45 instructors were "game" and the results of the written examination held yesterday and made public today was little less than startling.

Sequias were described as a variety of fish; brilliantine was declared to be a preparation "that young ladies put in their eyes to make them shine"; the trade name of a cosmetic was declared to be the name of a cabaret while another professor said it was a character referred to in the Bible. Alta was declared to be a movie actor; Mr. Gallaher and Mr. Sheen in the transfer business in New Orleans while another instructor hubbed them a version of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Grover Cleveland Bergdoll was given two identities. One professor said he was a world war hero, and another that he was a "democratic statesman." Maracchino the cherry "was a premier of Russia before the war." "Flet Mignon was declared to be an opera by Tuccini." "Let was the name in the Bible associated with salty wife." "Picking cherries," the name given a certain dance by the younger set was defined as "gathering fruit" by all but one of the instructors. She said it was a "slang term for petting."

IRISH MARCH IN PEACE PARADE

No Disturbance Results In St. Patrick Day Affair
In New York

NEW YORK, March 17.—3,200 members of the police department detailed to prevent possible clashes between Irish free states and republicans sympathizers guarded some 3,000 marchers in the annual St. Patrick's parade through Fifth avenue late today.

The nearest thing to a disturbance was created at 42nd street when an aged woman elbowed her way through the crowd and shouted: "Ow! ye dirty robbers."

The resulting laughter disgusted her and she moved on. Several republicans bearing placards scoring the free states attempt to join in the procession but were politely pushed back by the police lines.

New York, March 17.—Two hundred and fifty-five detectives in plain clothes and several hundred uniformed patrolmen were detailed to mingle with the crowds when 40,000 men and women are expected to take part in a St. Patrick's day parade.

The police order for increased protection as issued in spite of statements from the city hall that no trouble was anticipated.

A delegation claiming to represent the American association for recognition of the Irish republic called on Mayor Hylan Thursday and warned him that they would be trouble if the parade is held. The organization sent Mayor Hylan a letter repudiating the action of the delegation.

FESS DENIES REQUEST ON LIGHT WINES LAWS

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 17.—Senator Fess, Republican, Ohio, informed Governor Smith of New York in a letter made public here today that he would not comply with the petition of the New York legislature for support of the proposed legal wines and beer. There should be no compromise of the liquor question, the Ohio senator said, and the proper recourse for those opposing prohibition would be to advocate the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

The whole history of the temperance movement in the United States, said the letter, "is replete with illustration after illustration of attempted compromises. The evils of this business are of such character as to have convinced the American people that it is a subject which cannot be regulated but must be annihilated."

Hickman Declares Schools Will End
Session on May 19

The city schools of Ada will close May 19, according to an announcement this morning by Superintendent J. E. Hickman. All rumors that they might close prior to that time are groundless.

The finances of the city school system have been handled so economically that, unlike many other cities, it will not be necessary to curtail the length of the term. This means that Ada is to be congratulated upon being able to carry on the school work, even with decreased funds caused by the smaller tax paid by one of the railroads and other causes.

BLIZZARD AGAIN SWEEPING WEST

Entire West Again To Be In Lap Of Cold Wave
Over Sunday

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO, March 17.—The second blizzard within a week sweeping over the central west tonight threatened another prostration of transportation and telephone and telegraph lines.

The second storm which first appeared last night in a portion of the Canadian northwest, promises pushed rapidly today over the northern plains, accompanied by a strong northerly wind.

In portions of North Dakota and Minnesota temperatures ranged from ten to twenty degrees below zero. In Nebraska and east to Lake Superior the mercury dropped to zero.

DENVER, March 17.—Lashed along by a wind that ranged from 45 miles an hour speed in Denver to 100 miles an hour in velocity at Carola, Colorado at the "top of the world" on the continental divide, the worst blizzard of the winter today swept Colorado and the Rocky Mountain region. Snow fall was general throughout the region, accompanied by rapidly descending temperatures.

One death attributed to the storm which caused a damage estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars. The storm entered Arizona, New Mexico and Wyoming. Fear is expressed that loss of live stock will be heavy if the fall continues.

Gowing Declares Business Showing Gradual Increase

Manager C. V. Gowing of the American Clay company expresses himself as very well satisfied with the manner in which the business of the Ada factory has been picking up during the past few months. He states that the factory is now running about 50 per cent capacity, which is about the same as the general average over the United States. Furthermore, the outlook for a further increase in volume is very promising.

Mr. Gowing states that a year ago the average output of the factories of the United States was only 26 per cent and that the Ada plant was slightly above that figure at the time. At this time the chief demand for the products of the Ada factory is for the illuminating ware, the cut glass demand to open later in the year. Nothing is being done in the casket line at this time.

CRUTCHER NEARS END WORK HERE

Final Sermon to be Preached
Sunday at First Baptist Church.

The revival services of the First Baptist church will close Sunday evening with a sermon by Dr. George H. Crutcher on "Three Kinds of Decisions."

Additions to the church last evening brought the total almost to the three-quarters of a hundred mark. The sermon this morning will be on the subject, "Christ's Yoke." Going beyond his usual brilliancy, in his sermon, Friday evening Dr. Crutcher carried his audience along with flights of oratory interspersed with deep reasoning and the old doctrine of repentance and saving by the grace of Christ.

His subject was "The Three Crosses," speaking of the crosses borne by Christ, by the robber who repented and the other robber who was not saved. Drawing conclusions from the repentance and saving of the thief on the cross, the speaker called attention to many things which are necessary in order to see God in another world.

The thief believed in the existence of God. He had not gone so low that he had lost faith in a divine being. He believed in a future life. He had truly repented. He was willing to acknowledge his guilt. Every human being is given a will and he is responsible for it. The thief was solicitous about the other thief or companion in crime.

The saved thief had faith. He had faith, not when Christ was calming the waves on the sea of Galilee, not when he was raising Lazarus from the dead, not when he marched in triumph before the mighty throngs with songs of praise ringing out over the hillsides. But he had faith when even some of the disciples had forsaken him. He had faith when Christ was deserted.

The saving of the thief was not dependent upon anything the thief himself could do. His conversion was sudden. A deathbed repentance was sufficient though it is the only one recorded in the Bible.

The minister closed with an appeal for those present not to take chances. One may not be in his right mind when death steals on. He may be snatched in an instant into another life.

Kansas Republican
Of Governor in War

TOPEKA, March 17.—The juggernaut of a republican majority and the veto bludgeon of the democratic governor vied for honors all day in the Kansas house. In every one of the thirteen tests made to override the governor's veto before the evening recess was taken the majority emerged triumphant.

To troubles of the majority Governor Davis added seven more vetoes before the dinner hour, bringing his total for the season up to 30.

Both houses before going to dinner adopted a resolution changing the date for adjournment from midnight tonight to midnight Monday. Supporters of the measure declare that they feared the governor might send a number of vetoes to the house just before midnight tonight and then follow it with a special message that the hour of twelve had arrived.

CALM PRECEDES OUTBREAK OVER RUHR QUESTION

French Continue to Take Coal
From German Mines in Ruhr Basin

HELD ON SABOTAGE

Responsibility Controversy for Murder of French Soldiers On

ESSEN, March 17.—The Ruhr is calm but the possibility of a certain outbreak exists. Although the newspapers declare the situation is more acute, there is not any indication of a source of trouble.

Coal is being taken from two mines by the French. The French have arrested several men in Düsseldorf for charges of sabotage. They are accused of tampering with the telephone system, the penalty for which is hard labor for life.

The controversy over the responsibility for the shooting of the two Frenchmen at Buer last week is still proceeding. The Germans have produced witnesses who contend that their assailants were French deserters, but the French state that the bullets were from revolvers such as are used by the German security police.

BERNE, Switzerland, March 17.—Traffic in that section of Germany occupied by the French and Belgians has shown such signs of improvement recently, that the government declines to press the diplomatic representation to the French which business and industry demanded. It seems that raw materials and partly manufactured goods absolutely necessary for the operation of Swiss industries were not coming through the Ruhr valley.

BERLIN, March 17.—A report from Priemersheim, a Rhine town near Doubring says that forty soldiers were killed and many injured when a French troop train collided. The impact was so violent that several coaches telescoped.

PARIS, March 17.—Premier Poincare will entertain no propositions for negotiations with Germany until the Berlin government makes a direct and official notice to the French government that she wants to negotiate. It was declared in French official circles.

PARIS, March 17.—Any attempt by a third power to intervene or propose discussion of terms by which a settlement might be reached with Germany, he added, would be considered an unfriendly act.

DUSSELDROF, March 17.—Two Germans were shot and killed by French sentries during the night—one at Recklinhauser and the other at Essen.

on Wholesale Plan

J. M. Atkinson, proprietor of the Ada pickle factory, the only factory of the kind in Oklahoma is hard at work getting his product into shape for the market. His product has been on sale in Ada stores for sometime, and a few days ago he contracted his first car which will be shipped to Sherman in a few days. He says he will have trouble in disposing of about 20 cars which he will have to sell and could easily sell at least twice that number, if he had them. He regards Ada as an ideal location for a factory and with sufficient capital believes that a factory could be operated on a large scale and be a big money maker.

Mr. Atkinson expects to double his output next year. If the cucumber crop is up to normal. Most of the farmers who sold to him last year have signed up for this year, several of them doubling their acreage. Now that they have had a year's experience with cucumbers, he figures on a much better yield from most of them this year, if the season is favorable.

The Ada factory turns out three kinds of pickles, dill, sweet, and sour and in time Mr. Atkinson hopes to add other products to the list.

Ada Girl Leading in Beauty Contest at Dallas School

From Dallas Journal
Annie Louise Shaw, of Ada, Okla., and Nellie Sims of Stratford, Texas, had received the largest number of nominations yesterday noon for the beauty contest at Southern Methodist University at which will be conducted by the Rotunda for the first week in the third term. They were followed closely by Maxellie Rawls, Dallas, and Kathryn Mason, also of Dallas.

It will be recalled by those in this section that Miss Shaw was the May Queen of the East Central State Teachers College last year. The honor coming to her at Dallas is not the first she has received. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Shaw of East Tenth Street.

PLAN OUTLINED FOR WEEVIL WAR

Extension Agent Explains Use of Poison to Fight Boll Weevil.

Outside of cultural methods in raising cotton under boll weevil conditions, poisoning with calcium arsenate has given the best results, according to a statement by Dr. Schell, state extension entomologist at the boll weevil meeting at the Chamber of Commerce Friday afternoon. However, to get good results from this the poison must be applied on nights when the dew is heavy so that the poisoned poison will stick to the plants. The poison costs 20 cents per pound, he said, and four or five pounds to the acre is needed for the first application and six to eight pounds in following sprayings. It should be applied four or five times at intervals of five or six days. The first application should be made when about 10 per cent of the squares have been punctured.

For applying the poison a number of machines have been invented. A hand machine costs about $15 and the others come higher, the largest costing between $200 and $300. However, we warned his hearers that unless the poison is applied properly there is no use in trying it at all.

He stated that the examination of one of the cases containing 500 weevils that the department had buried near Antlers showed that 8 per cent had survived the past winter. Six per cent is considered a dangerous number to begin a season, hence it is apparent that Oklahoma is in a fair way for another tussle with the pest this year.

He mentioned the fact that numerous machines are being put on the market, and stated that none has ever been very effective in destroying the weevil. One man is out with a plan to catch them at night by means of a light. He stated that the weevils does not fly at night, hence this plan is a failure.

He said that the parasite may help some but that he does not think it will be numerous enough to be relied on to keep the weevil crop down.

Speaking of picking up punctured squares, he said that it begun at the first and was followed closely by the increase of the weevils. If the first crop were picked up carefully the second crop of the insects would not be heavy, hence there would be a chance of a crop of cotton being put on before the weevils became numerous enough to destroy it.

J. S. Moore followed Dr. Schell with an appeal for diversification and raising one's living at home. He spoke of the advantages of co-operative marketing of the cotton crop and the effective work of the Oklahoma Cotton Growers association and other organizations in bringing about a system of orderly marketing.

F. W. Vaught, director of the Cotton Growers association, said a few words regarding the work of the organization.

EVANGELIST PRAISES WORK OF ADA PASTOR

An Appreciation of Rev. C. C. Morris by G. H. Crutcher

Having known Mr. Morris since he was a student in college and being acquainted with his family, I want to say some words of appreciation of him. He comes of an honorable family. He is a man of fine moral character, honest and straightforward, with a sympathetic heart, a strong conviction for things that are right, and a consuming desire to be helpful to the people with whom he comes in contact. He married a young woman who had graduated from the same school and who had sustained the very highest reputation while a student in college. They entered life very fully qualified for its duties and they are each well qualified for leadership in any community to which they may go.

During the world war, Mr. Morris rendered his full quota of service with the men over there. He retired from the service with a conscientious clear of any offense toward men and an approval by his government for services well rendered. He is an unusually fine personal worker; his heart being with a consuming passion to win the lost to Jesus Christ and he is constantly working in that direction. This community is to be congratulated upon having in its midst such a worthy man so well qualified with a wife equally as well qualified and thoroughly sympathetic with all his religious activities.

The Baptist of this city and this section owe it to themselves and to the community at large to see that an adequate church building is erected in the near future. The Baptist church of this community has likely reached its fullest growth under present conditions, and with a young wife pastor the matter of building such a place is a minor undertaking, and I feel confident that all public-spirited people would welcome the efforts to build such a church as the community needs.

Increase Expected in Fourth Quarter College Enrollment

Tomorrow will mark the beginning of the fourth term of the college year. Enrollment was practically completed during the past week so that the students could go on with their work Monday without loss of time. Many new faces were seen in the office and President Linsehold has estimated that there will be at least a hundred new students enrolling for the next term. Many of these will be teachers whose terms have expired and who are returning to school here to continue their studies in this institution.

A number of students even larger than that of last summer is expected for the coming summer term, beginning May 28. An enrollment of six hundred students was secured last summer, and Mr. Linsehold states that he has no idea of just how many more will be in Ada during the summer this year.

Fourteen states of this country have placed a maximum legal limit on employment agency fees.

Saturday Night in Ada

The Observation of the Trend of Life With All Classes Represented.

(By An Observer)

What is the most interesting thing you see when you come down town Saturday evening? Is it a show window? Is it the lines and lines of automobiles? Is it the general bustle and activity of a small city at its busiest hours? Or is it just simply a study of human nature?

Standing at the First National Bank corner and watching the lines of humanity, one who is given to thinking cannot but be impressed with the passing show.

First we notice two little children, one a boy of four or five years, and his little sister. The sturdy little lad is seeing that his sister is protected. When she lingers a bit, he urges her on. When she gets too interested in some gaudy automobile, he pulls her back and tugs along.

Did you ever think what a dependable escort a boy is for his sister? And did it ever occur to you that the girl who does not have a brother to protect her is missing one of the most wholesome things in life? And do you remember how you once protected your own sister? At times she might have been headstrong and led you a merry chase, but just the same she was given to you to protect and you would have rushed a mad half rather than see injury come to her.

We then noticed an old man, possibly nearing the grave, coming along. His beard is white, his step is feeble and he places his feet on the walk with care. Tomorrow or next day he will belong to the God who sent him here, and will be asked his reasons for expecting happiness in a future state. What must he have thought as he viewed the happy crowd, bent only on pleasure, is he saying that all is vanity? Is he saying that life is real and life is earnest and the grave is not the goal? I don't know and you don't know, but it is pleasure, and the thoughts are not pleasure, and the radiance of his countenance shows his life has been well spent. There is no indication of dissipation.

Now feminine passers

Here comes two girls in their early teens. Their skirts are short and their legs are well dressed in fancy hose. Their faces are painted slightly too much. Their eyes roll first this way and then that, as though they were in search of companions. They are not bad, but a bit indiscreet.

A few years from now these girls will be women and will become mothers of men. Will they give to the world those who will bless it or those who will curse it? I don't know and you don't know. One may be the greatest person in the world, the greatest man of the next generation.

Here comes another female of the species, alone. Her eyes are too bold. Her face painted too much. Her life has been scarlet. A few more years and she will pass off the earth, forgotten and cursed by those who have come into contact with her.

Another girl follows. She is putting into her handbag a letter. Her eyes sparkle with pleasure, for no doubt she has been reading a message of love from some swain in a distant place. She does not notice any one about her. May her pleasure be as great as she anticipates.

Here is a man who has been drinking, one whiskey for several days. His eyes are red. His walk is even now unsteady. Generally he is rather decent chap and it is to be hoped that the fiend lets go of him.

Next we see a business man. He steps quick, knows where he is going and wants to get there without delay. He shows the strain of the week's affairs and seems in a hurry to get through and get home for Sunday's let down.

A matronly woman with two young children wobbles by. Her young brood keeping her busy. Two lady schoolteachers, engaged in serious conversation, pass on their weekly treat to the movies.

And thus the stream continues. Doctors, lawyers, teachers, farmers, school boys and girls, merchants,—the entire list of human occupation is represented.

"A SPECIMEN"

John 11:5
"Now Jesus loved Martha; and her sister, and Lazarus."
There is a great value in a specimen.
A specimen is a lens through which you can see and get a notion of the whole class of which it is part and instance.
Our scripture and surroundings are a very shining specimen of the Divine Love.
Look at this specimen from two angles, the angle though, and the angle since.

Behold the Angle Though
1. Though Jesus loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus, he permitted Lazarus to sicken and die. How many specimens like this can you add from your own acquaintance?

2. Though Jesus loved Martha and her sister, and Lazarus, he did not immediately answer the prayer of the sisters. No where can be found a prayer more truly a prayer than this "Lord, he whom thou lovest is sick." What trust, what submission, what clinging in it.

3. Though the messenger hurried, the Lord does not hurry.
4. Though Jesus loved Martha, and her sister and Lazarus, he left the sisters to the regretful bewailing of the human "if." "Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died."

Behold from the Angle Since
1. Since our Lord loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus, he continued for benignant purposes. Looking through the whole story, do you not see that his delay was better and more loving than had been his swifter coming.
Lazarus lifted out of death with all the glorious truth of the Lord's mastery over death in this dying world was better for the sisters and for you and me, than had been Lazarus merely prevented from dying.

2. Since our Lord loved them, he did not come that he might furnish help for our faith.
3. Since Jesus loved them, he would assure them of the Divine sympathy. Jesus wept. Think of the immensity of the consolation in such revelation of the weeping God.
4. Since our Lord loved them, he gave them better answer than they had ever dared to pray for or to dream. They prayed that he might be kept from dying. Jesus gave him raised from the dead. Wise love must sometimes run strange to imperfections and ignorance.

The Delphian Chapter

The Delphian chapter met in regular session Tuesday, March 13, at the Harris Hotel. The new officers elected at the previous meeting took charge and, after a short business session, the following programme was carried out with Mrs. Bullock as leader:

Roll Call: Whittier.
Life of Poe.—Mrs. Webster.
"The Bells"—Mrs. Hickman.
"The Raven" and its meaning.—Mrs. Wimbish.

Life of Whitman.—Mrs. McKee.
"Snowbound"—Mrs. Wells.
"Worship of Nature"—Mrs. Granger.

"Grave by the Lake"—Mrs. Couch.
After the lesson the new president, Mrs. Wimbish, was hostess to the club in a most delightful way.

LEATRICE JOY WEARS SUPERB

CHINESE GEMS IN "JAVA HEAD"

Attract Made Responsible for Safety of Jewelry During Filming of Picture.

Leatrice Joy, who plays the role of a high class Chinese woman in George Melford's Paramount production of "Java Head" which will be the feature at the McSwain theatre next Monday and Tuesday had a goodly share of responsibility in the picture.

There are no fewer than seventy-nine distinct articles of jewelry and costume accessories of which Miss Joy must keep accurate account and make correct use. Among them are included large and small peacocks, jade grape pins, mottled stone ornaments, ivory hair-pins, ivory and silver dope pipe, small brass nail-heads, jade and pearl earrings, double strand of green glass beads, moonstone ornaments and various other pretties.

Being an American girl, Leatrice Joy naturally contrasts this varied collection of gems with the unusual meagre assortment which is owned by American women of the same station as Tsou Yen, the Chinese character which she portrays.

"After naming such pieces as a rope of pearls, several rings, a diamond-studded wrist watch, a pair of jade earrings, and perhaps a bar pin and gold cigarette case, the average American woman is wont to consider her jewel case well stocked," says Miss Joy, whereas a Chinese woman of similar social position would regard such a collection as merely a slim start toward the necessary number of ornaments."

Ada Shows Musical Growth

That Ada is in a fair way to become a real musical center is evident from the growing interest in all things musical, both in imported talent and in the development of local ability. For several years high class musicians have been brought to Ada and great interest has been shown in their performances. Even more recently a number of musical organizations have been formed for the purpose of developing local talent and providing good music for the town.

There is much talent already developing here and endless quantity of material which lacks training, according to Mr. A. L. Fentem, who is in charge of the music at the college here. The only thing that has prevented Ada from becoming a greater musical center, according to him is the fact that the citizens here have been slow in taking hold of the problem in a serious way.

Among entertainers who have been before the Ada people are Arthur Middleton, Marie Rappold, Lucy Gates, Anna Case, Oscar Siegel, Paul Althouse, the Cherniavsky trio, Paulo Gruppe, and other artists of well known ability. Several of these have appeared here more than once. A number of high class musical entertainments are now being scheduled for the coming months.

There are in Ada about twelve piano teachers who can give as good musical training on that instrument as could be desired. These teachers can give advanced work as well as work for beginners. Only in the past two years has there been opportunity for advanced violin work. Miss Helene Goss, who teaches violin here, has found no lack of interest in that line of musical endeavor, but most of the students of that instrument are either beginners or have had little experience.

Plenty of good voices are to be found here but there is no concerted effort to make that department of music a feature. Pupils are forced to go elsewhere for advanced training, which could easily be provided here if everyone interested would get together and work toward that goal.

High School Band Feature

Among local musical organizations is the high school band. Mr. Fentem started this organization several years ago with a small number of inexperienced players. Since that time the high school band has developed into one of the best, if not, as the high school enthusiastically believed, the best high school band in the state. It has played several times in the state contests for bands and this year hopes to capture the honors for first place. Mr. Hill, principal of the high school, is the present director of the band.

The early high school players formed the nucleus for the formation of the present college band, now under direction of Mr. Fentem. This is the first year for the college band, but it has set a record of accomplishment that any school band might envy. The band took part in the inaugural parade of Governor Wagon at Oklahoma City and was said by many observers to be the best band in the parade. Recently it made a two weeks tour through the East Central district to advertise the college, finishing with a concert here last week. They were received with enthusiasm everywhere on the trip and established the fact through the district that the local college is a real school.

The local DeMolay chapter has formed a band which will take an active part in the activities of the local boys. This organization is under the direction of Mr. Schrieber who is also in charge of the battery band, which consists largely of members of the high school and college bands.

Both high school and college support well trained orchestras, with beginners organizations to develop talent for the major clubs. In addition to these school orchestras three of the ward schools have taken up music in this line and are training the younger children in orchestra work.

VLADIVOSTOK FACES FAMINE FROM HIGH TAXATION

VLADIVOSTOK, Feb. 1.—Food taxes have not been a success in this district, although the authorities are declaring that the collection of taxes has been very satisfactory. The government has no money to buy food produce in large quantities abroad, and one of the leading commissars has declared that if things do not improve the district is in danger of famine this year. Soldiers of the Red Army are going from house to house begging for food, although this is strictly forbidden by the army regulations. The men complain that they get only one and a half pounds of bread daily and sometimes soup made of fish. They are supposed to get a salary of 25 kopecks a day, but many of them have not been paid for more than three months.

CHAPTER X

Rojas.

No word from George Thorne had come to Fortom River in weeks. Gale grew concerned over the fact, and began to wonder if anything serious could have happened to him. Mercedes showed a slow, weary strain.

Thorne's commission expired the end of January, and if he could not get his discharge immediately, he surely could obtain leave of absence. Therefore, Gale waited, not without growing anxiety, and did his best to cheer Mercedes. The first of February came bringing news of rebel activities and battle operations in and around Casita, but not a word from the cavalryman.

A dozen times Gale declared he would ride in to Casita and find out why they did not hear from Thorne; however, older and wiser heads prevailed over his impetuosity. Belding and the rangers and the Yaqui held a consultation. Not only had the Indian become a faithful servant to Gale but he was also of value to Belding. Yaqui had all the craft of his class, and superior intelligence. His knowledge of McNamara was second only to his knowledge of Thorne. And Yaqui, who had been scouting on all the trails, gave information that made Belding decide to wait some days before sending anyone to Casita.

It was upon Gale's coming from this conference that he encountered Nell. She had been alone, and she had been waiting for him. He had been waiting for her. When he drew close to her he was certain of it, and he experienced more than surprise.

"Dick," she began hurriedly, "Mercedes is dying by inches. Can't you see what she's doing? It's more than love or fear. It's uncertainty—suspense. Oh, can't we find out for her?"

"Nell, I feel as badly as you about her. I want to ride to Casita. Belding shut me up quick, the last time."

Nell came close to Gale, clasped his arm. There was no color in her face. Her eyes held a dark, eager excitement.

"Dick, will you slip off without Belding's consent? Risk it! Go to Casita and find out what's happened to Thorne—at least if he ever started for Fortom River?"

"No, Nell, I won't do that." She drew away from him with passionate suddenness.

"Are you afraid?"

"What certainly was not the Nell Burton that Gale knew."

"No, I'm not afraid," Gale replied, a little nervously.

"Will you go—for my sake? Like Belding, her head danced and she was close to him, hands on his, her face white, her whole presence a deadly challenge."

"Well, I won't disobey Belding," protested Gale. "I won't break his word."

"Dick, I'll not be so bad as that. But what if it is . . . Go, Dick, if not for poor Mercedes' sake, then for mine—to please me. If—If—If you won't lose anything by going, I think I know how Mercedes feels. Just a word from Thorne or about him would save her. Take Blanco Sol and go, Dick. What rebel could ever ride you down on that horse? Why, Dick, if I was up on Sol I wouldn't be afraid of the whole rebel army."

Gale could only stare at this transfigured girl.

"Dick, listen . . . If you go—if you fetch some word of Thorne to comfort Mercedes, you—well, you will have your reward. Dick, will you go?" "So—no!" cried Gale, in violence, struggling with himself. "Nell Burton, I'll tell you this. To have the reward I want would mean pretty near heaven for me. But not even for that will I break my word to your father."

She seemed the incarnation of girlish scorn and wilful passion.

"Gracias, señor," she replied, mockingly. "Adios." Then she dashed out of his sight.

Gale went to his room at once, disturbed and thrilling, and did not soon recover from that encounter.

The following morning at the breakfast table Nell was not present. "She's in one of her tantrums lately," said Belding. "Wouldn't speak to me this morning. Let her alone, mother. She's spoiled enough, without running after her. She's always hungry. She'll be on hand presently, don't mistake me."

Notwithstanding Belding's conviction, which Gale shared, Nell did not appear at all during the hour. Perhaps half an hour afterward, as Gale was leaving his room, he saw the Yaqui running up the path from the fields. Gale wondered what was the matter. Yaqui ran straight to Belding, who was at work at his bench under the wagon shed. In less than a moment Belding was bellowing for his rangers. Gale got to him first, but Ladd and Lash were not far behind.

"Blanco Sol gone!" yelled Belding, in a rage. "Haiders!" exclaimed Jim Lash. "Lord only knows, Yaqui says it wasn't raiders." "Send Yaqui to find the boss' trail, an' let's figger," said Ladd. "Shore this is no raider job." In the swift search that ensued Gale did not have anything to say; but his mind was forming a conclusion. When he found his old saddle and bridle missing from the peg in the barn his conclusion became a positive conviction, and it made him, for the moment, cold and sick and speechless.

"Hey, Dick, don't take it so much to heart," said Belding. "We'll likely find Sol, and if we don't, there's other good horses."

"I'm not thinking of Sol," replied Gale. Ladd cast a sharp glance at Gale, snapped his fingers, and said:

"D—n me if I ain't guessed it too!" "What's wrong with you locoed gents?" bluntly demanded Belding.

"Nell has started for Casita," burst out Gale. "She has gone to fetch Mercedes some word about Thorne. Oh, Belding, you needn't shake your head. I know she's gone. She tried to persuade me to go, and was furious when I wouldn't."

"I don't believe it," replied Belding, hoarsely. "Nell may have her temper. She's a little devil at times, but she always had good sense."

"Tou, you can gamble she's gone," said Ladd.

"Aw, h—t, no! Jim, what do you think?" implored Belding.

"I reckon Sol's white head is pointed level and straight down Casita trail. An' Nell can ride. We're losin' time."

That roused Belding to action. "I say you're all wrong," he yelled, starting for the corral. "She's only taking a little ride, same as she's done often. But rustle now. Find out. Dick, you ride cross the valley. Jim, you hunt up and down the river. I'll head up San Felipe way. And you, Laddy, take Diablo and hit the Casita trail. If she really has gone after Thorne you can catch her in an hour or so."

"Shore I'll go," replied Ladd. "But, Belding, if you're not plumb crazy in a rage."

"Blanco Sol gone!" yelled Belding, in a rage.

"You're close to it. That big white devil can't catch Sol. Not in an hour or a day or a week."

"Laddy, you mean to say Sol is a faster horse than Diablo?" thundered Belding, his face purple.

"Shore I mean to tell you just that there," replied the ranger. "I'll ride your Blanco Devil as he never was rid before, 'cept once when a d—n sight better hossman than I am couldn't make him outrun Sol."

Without more words the men saddled and were off. The interminable time that followed contained for Gale about as much suspense as he could well bear. What astonished him and helped him greatly to fight off actual distress was the endurance of Nell's mother.

Early on the morning of the second day, Gale saw three white horses and a bay come wearily stepping down the road. He heard Blanco Sol's familiar whistle, and he leaped up wild with joy. The horse was riderless. Gale's sudden joy received a violent check, then resurged when he saw a limp form in Jim Lash's arms. Ladd was supporting a horseman who wore a military uniform.

Gale shouted with joy and ran into the house to tell the good news. It was the ever-thoughtful Mrs. Belding who prevented him from rushing to tell Mercedes.

Lash handed down a ragged, travel-stained, worn girl into Belding's arms. "Dad! Mamma!"

It was indeed a repentant Nell, but there was split yet in the tired blue eyes. Then she caught sight of Gale and gave him a faint smile.

"Hello—Dick."

"Nell!" Gale reached for her hand, held it tightly, and found speech difficult.

"You needn't worry—about your old horse," she said, as Belding carried her toward the door. "Oh, Dick! Blanco Sol is—glorious!"

Gale turned to greet his friend. Indeed, it was but a haggard ghost of the cavalryman. Thorne looked ill or wounded. Gale's greeting was also a question full of fear.

Thorne's answer was a faint smile. He seemed ready to drop from the saddle. Gale helped Ladd hold Thorne upon the horse until they reached the house. Belding came out again. His welcome was checked as he saw the condition of the cavalryman. Thorne reeled into Dick's arms. But he was able to stand and walk. "I'm not—hurt. Only weak—starved," he said. "Is Mercedes—Take me to her." "She'll be well the minute she sees him," averred Belding, as he and Gale led the cavalryman to Mercedes' room. There they left him; and Gale, at least, felt his ears ringing with the girl's broken cry of joy.

When Belding and Gale hurried forth again the rangers were tending the tired horses. Upon returning to the house Jim Lash calmly lit his pipe, and Ladd declared that, hungry as he was, he had to tell his story.

"Shore, Belding," began Ladd, "that was funny about Diablo catchin' Blanco Sol. Funny ain't the word. I nearly laughed myself to death. Well, I rode in Sol's tracks all the way to Casita. Never seen a rebel or a raider till I got to town. I went straight to the camp of the cavalrymen, an' found them just coolin' off an' dressin' down their horses after what looked to me like a big ride."

"Some soldier too!" me to an officer's tent. Nell was there, some white an' all in. She just said, 'Laddy!'

THE 1923 CAR OWNER IS MORE CAREFUL WITH TIRES—SAYS C. H. MCKELLAR OF ADA SERVICE AND FILLING STATION

Huge Reduction Made in Past "Wastes"

"One evidence of a return to normalcy was very marked during the past year," says C. H. McKellar of the Ada Service and Filling Station. "Motorists this season are taking much better care of their tires than during the boom times of 1920."

"It is a fact," said M. McKellar, that about 80 per cent of all automobile tires used to go out of service a long time before they should, due to the abuse by their owners. Under-inflation used to be one of the most common abuses, and the greatest cause of failures.

"It was estimated that in 1920, about $100,000,000 was the national tire waste, due to abuse. This has now been reduced perhaps a third."

"In 1915, it was estimated that five tires and five tubes were necessary per automobile per year. In 1922, 2 1-2 tires and tubes will be approximately the national average per car. Of course, tires are a whole lot better today. For instance, on Seiberling Cords which sell only 1.4 per cent have come back for adjustment."

"Then, too, the good tire dealer today goes far to co-operate with the car owner in seeing that the tires are run under the best conditions. We are glad to check up to see that the wheels are in alignment, and we are glad to check the inflation for our customers, regularly. Wheel mis-alignment and under-inflation constitute causes of at least 80 per cent of the tire failures."

"The interest of the car owners themselves, and the better tires of today, are the chief reasons why the big national waste in tires has been reduced."

SCHOOL NOTES

GLENWOOD The Parent-Teachers association joined the school in a social evening Friday.

The school rendered a short program, the audience joined in a song, after which refreshments were served, consisting of hot doughnuts and coffee. Everyone had a good time.

The Glenwood Literary Society met Thursday after recess, program consisting of readings, music and a short play, was rendered.

The Thursday morning assembly was an enjoyable occasion. Mrs. Hansard, 4th grade teacher favored us with a reading. Supt. Hickman made a report on his visit to the National convention and the quarter ended several numbers.

Raymond Duke, Cecil Louch, Lora Wilson and Lucile Todd, who were absent on account of flu have returned to the 8th grade.

Ladie Prwet, from McAllister entered 8th this week.

Farley Smith, Eba Bevels, Allie Kaykendall, Azell McNally, Charley Curry, Ted Rogers, Annie Keegan and Binion Kirkbridge have returned to the 7th grade having been out several days with flu.

The pie party at Glenwood Friday night was a success. The program rendered by the pupils was enjoyed by all. Sambo, the black face comedian made a hit while the quartet had much praise, but the fairies were the scream of the evening.

Baseball is progressing rapidly, the boys are working hard. After pounding Willard for 17 scores, while giving them only two, the boys held Irving to a 4-2 score. This was much more than anyone expected. Our boys had them guessing for six innings before Irving scored. Conley and Boyd our batsmen, played the stellar role for us in the infield, while Simon Stow, center field made several spectacular catches.

It was a good game and both teams were pleased.

CHEROKEE—Members of Junior Pig Clubs in Alfalfa county shipped three carloads of pigs to be exhibited at the Southwest American livestock show at Oklahoma City, according to George Newton, county agricultural agent.

The shipment represented pig clubs of Cherokee, Jet, Amorita, Lambert and Glotry, the county agent said. Other clubs in the county are at Carmen, Alfine and Burlington.

MAIN STREET

—BY—
V. L. H.

The Flag of Erin waved frantically in the stiff gale that ushered St. Pat's Day into Ada.

That popular day of truce for the public and the police personnel of our larger cities waned here with few Shamrocks, but plenty of followers.

Although the supply of Shamrocks was early purchased off by more enthusiastic sons of Erin, others strove to show their pride in the family tree that sprouted in Ireland by bedecking themselves in various garments of green ranging from ties and socks to countenances.

Of course peaceful Ada expected no community uprising between factions of sons of Ireland on the national fight anthem, "Long live the Orange men," but should this handicap owing to the short run at the brick plant.

Local merchants who prepared to furnish Shamrocks for the local Irish population were applauded at the request of several parties, whose nationality is under question but who have contributed freely to the relief for down-trodden residents in Palestine.

Others view the celebration of St. Pat's Day as a just relief from the period of turmoil in the "oil control" and refrain from expressing themselves because they hardly know what form of government is now in power in that country.

It was St. Pat's day in our alley. And all the folks were primed. To hear the work of McNally. Start the battle off on time.

We still contend that there is room for argument on the contention suspenders are more important than statesman.

—and just remember that when it's all over and the Sweet Young Thing of the days before—gets mau she'll just delight in telling all your friends of all the idiotic things you were saying that night in the moonlight.

—you'll blame it on the moon now—but remember you told her that she caused all those foolish utterances to fall from your lips.

—and then if things go wrong and you're up before the judge after spending $60 and many nights of anxiety, she may tell him all you told her during the foolish age.

COOPER AND IVEY TO MIX IN BOUT

Popular Mit Artists to End Suspension in 10-Round Bout Here.

Sport fans are getting set for the coming exhibition bout between Archie Cooper, local winner of many ring engagements, and Battling Ivey of Wilson.

Cooper will go into intensive training next week for his bout here on March 23. Ivey is expected to arrive early in the week to open training quarters.

No preliminaries have yet been arranged for the Cooper-Ivey 10-round engagement, but it is expected that lively bouts will precede the main go. Sparks will probably be billed with some other aspirant for the semi-finals.

Considerable interest is being shown here in the coming bout. Cooper and Ivey pleased a large gathering of fans in their last bout and it is expected that the bout Friday night will be even more of a show than their first engagement.

The staging of the Cooper-Ivey bout comes directly under the management of the Norman Howard post American Legion. Other bouts have been under their auspices but the bout Friday night will be the first to be directly managed by the Legion.

To Top the Mode with Smartness

It is often said—and quite truly—that you can always tell when a woman is wearing a new hat by the gratified, pleased expression on her face. Somehow, with a becoming new hat she feels well dressed, no matter how old and shabby her frock or her coat may be. And a smart hat really does set off her costume as well as the face, marvelously. But perhaps the newest idea is to have a hat which is suitable and appropriate with the rest of one's costume. In fact, the real secret of being well dressed is the ability to wear things that go well together and are becoming to you. The woman who has very few costumes, but makes them complete by having her hat just perfectly suited to her frock and her shoes, gloves and hosiery in perfect accord, will always look well dressed, even though she wears that same costume every day in the year.

Unless one keeps strict rein on one's self, one is apt to see some charming little hat in a shop window whose great appeal lies in the fact that it is wholly different from the things we have and of which we are terribly tired. If, in addition to this, it is becoming and the saleslady is clever—we are lost and buy it without further thought. But this really is not necessary, for never before have we been offered such countless varieties and variations of the millinery mode.

Smart Street Wear.
For street wear the little felt cloche is still quite the smartest. Generally the crown of the cloche is high and is either rounded or cone shaped. But in the brim and in the trimming the variation is infinite. One smart little model has a narrow brim turned down so as to rest on the forehead, and a band and in the back it goes to the other extreme and turns so abruptly that it is flat to the crown of the hat. It is trimmed with a fuzzy little pompon on the back on the right side. This tendency is seen on countless smart hats. The trimming is way back on the right side and now and then they do make their appearance now and then.

A lovely little hat worn at a very fashionable tea recently had a small turn-down brim, and an uncurled ostrich plume which started at the middle of the back of the crown and falling over the right ear curved gracefully under the charming wearer's chin. Almost every feather used tries to follow this same general line.

Frequently one will see an ostrich feather plucked so that the feathery part is just a little pompon at the end.

Strange unheard of birds, if they have long, curving feathery tails, are also quite at the height of the mode.

Modes of the Large Hat
When the large hat is worn it is usually very large, sometimes with the brim much wider in back than in front. And where a woman finds a large hat more becoming she may quite properly select one. One large black hat was trimmed with a band of silver ribbon which fell through a slit in the brim in two large loops over the right ear. Many a gracefully draped veil is used in this same manner.

In fact, this tendency of all trimming to go to the right was carried out to such an extent by one smart Parisian that she wore a long sinuous carrying on the right ear only, leaving the left ear quite unadorned. It hardly seems likely that many Americans will carry this fashion to such an extreme but it does show how strong this tendency is.

However, these large hats do not as yet enjoy the popularity of the smaller one. And though they might burst into highest favor and day, it is hardly possible that the fashion will continue for long.

With the soft, dainty summer dresses the hat is usually softer, though there may be a little stiffening in the brim. It is a very charming fashion, too, to keep our earlier hats for our more tailored costume, and a soft crushed little model is so lovely with a dainty dress.

Evening Hat to Return.
It is rumored that the evening hat, which has been absent so long, is returning to high favor. It is really quite a natural development when one stops to think about it. Bandeaux have been growing wider and more elaborate than ever. So some clever milliner just put a little tulle brim were added. This does not mean that the bandeau is going out. Just the opposite. For the wider and more elaborate the bandeau that is worn with a formal frock, the smarter the costume. It just shows our tendency to wear some sort of head covering at every possible moment. This desire for headgear is certain to last while the bobbed heads are growing out, for it involves many a problem of hair dressing. And the person to whom the simple smooth style of coiffure is unbecoming—and unfortunately there are many such—is sure to follow this fashion with enthusiasm.

Veils Winning Favor
The veil is enjoying high favor this season and quite deservedly. On a windy, blustery day of early spring how trimly smart and dashing is the wearer of a veil. And how great is her composure when she knows that her hair is not straggling about her face, but is just as it was when she last peeped into a mirror. The graceful folds of the draped lace veil seen so often in the afternoon are very flattering, too. And countless are the ways in which such a veil may be draped. A gold veil covering the crown of a brown hat and falling in loops close to the face would surely be a prized addition to any wardrobe. Or a small hat may allow its veil to hang straight down in the back, but be draped up a little under the chin. This slight draping is held in place by pins placed close to the edge of the veil. Where these veils are worn the hat is very plain and without any other trimming. The veil itself is very elaborate. It may be beautifully figured at the edge or of soft delicate light color.

LEADER REVIEWS LABOR TROUBLES

Declares Labor Owes it to Herself to Refrain From Being Negative.

(By the Associated Press)
LONDON—"Labor" should do itself the justice of ceasing to be negative, anti-capitalist, thinking only of its shares," writes Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor Opposition in the House of Commons in the February issue of the Socialist Review. His article is called "The Outlook for Trade Unionism."

"Every counsellor who advises labor contrary to the spirit of social co-operation is misleading it," continued Mr. MacDonald.

"The building up of an organization devised exclusively to fight capitalism is an error. The fight against capitalism has to be carried on by applying a better spirit than that of capitalism into social and industrial problems and difficulties."

After stating that political and moral weapons alone can undermine the walls of capitalism, Mr. MacDonald adds:

"Organized labor, trade union executives, parliamentary parties, should each in their own way and in respect to their own trades and jobs make the conspiracy of capitalism against the community—not always against the labor party—clear. This has to be accomplished by a persistent explanation of the work of capitalism, its watered stocks, its flotation expenses, its useless payments, its methods of keeping up prices, and such like."

In conclusion, Mr. MacDonald says: "Capitalism is decaying owing to its moral bankruptcy. It is at war with social production, with common well-being, and with the spiritual force of liberty. If the labor struggle is conducted in the same spirit as the capitalists have shown, and on a class basis, the decisive battles will be fought with economic weapons alone and labor will gain no great victory; but as soon as labor frees its mind so as to come under the influence of the spirit of its historic role to create a social economic organization that will secure liberty and make a single minded pursuit of commonwealth interests practicable, it will equip itself with weapons and hold a position which will make its final victory certain."

Dr. Maria Otto, a native of Wurzburg, recently appeared in the Munich courts as the first female lawyer ever to practice in Germany.

Miss Maxine Naylor, G. R. Naylor, Jr., W. T. Wauson, and Burt McKee will return today from Tulsa where they have been in attendance upon the Baptist State B. Y. P. U. Convention which has been in session for three days. They went as delegates from the local B. Y. P. U. of the First Baptist Church.

How far are we removed from the day when the style for children was just a miniature of the style for their parents. And it is really quite recently that becomingly childish fashions have been developed for children. But now the mode for children has a distinct and separate existence. Of course, now and then it is influenced by the older fashions, but it does not follow them slavishly. When one thinks back just a few hundred years to the time when little girls of six or seven wore frocks which reached the floor, we realize what a long way we have traveled.

It is on this question of length that the child mode has definitely decided to go its own way, for their little frocks and coats are quite as short as ever.

Party Frocks of Chiffon
When the little girl under ten goes to a party, she is quite likely to wear a frock of finely pleated rose-colored chiffon edged with tulle. Or she may choose a delicate pink crepe de chine with an edging of tiny ruffles and tucks. Or if she would look quite crisply smart she may choose to be clad in the most delicate of filmy blue taffeta. The younger she is the less apt is she to have any bell line on her frocks. They will just hang short and full from the shoulder. Her sleeves will be quite tiny—hardly more than caps and she is certain to favor the bateau neck.

If she is a little older, her frock will have a long blouse with the belt line just at the top of the hip. When this little miss attends a party it may well be in a youthfully crisp taffeta frock of a sunny yellow trimmed only with a quaint little garland of flowers about the hips. Or if she likes the softness of chiffon she may wear a frock whose long blouse is of a heavenly blue taffeta with a three tiered skirt of softly ruffled blue chiffon.

White Linen or Playtime
When the younger miss spends a glorious sunny morning playing on the sands or in some cool shaded wood she will be quite the fashion if she wears a white linen frock with yellow linen binding the Peter Pan collar, the short, full cap sleeves and buttoned front. This frock also hangs straight from the shoulder. With it are worn white linen bloomers to match which are also edged with yellow. All the light shades of linen are very becoming to children.

Rose, bright yellow, a green and blue linen with white linen trimmings made in this straight simple style are charming for children. The gaily checked gingham are also very appropriate for these simple little frocks. As she grows older, the young girl of under fifteen is very apt to copy her older sister's clothes from her older sister's simplest sports attire. A straight pleated skirt, brilliantly checkered, worn with a single toned sweater and a Peter Pan collar is a very suitable costume.

Three Piece Suits
However, if she requires something a bit dressier than this, she might have a three-piece serge suit. The dress of one model of this type has a long, straight blouse with a bateau neck and a finely pleated skirt. It is worn with a straight, close-fitting jacket.

The simpler the dress frock of the girl of this age, the better dressed she is.

Green taffeta fashions just such a frock which is smocked at the waist and neckline. A bouquet of old blue and green flowers at the waist has long streamers of ribbon which reach almost to the bottom of the skirt.

For the Little Man
To clothe the young man becomingly and appropriately when he first puts aside dresses is the most difficult problem which any mother has to face. One very successful way to solve it is to let him wear a straight little suit of blue linen in which the straight kickers are fastened to the top by means of white linen aged with tiny narrow ruffling. Sometimes the kickers are fastened to the top by means of large pearl buttons a couple of inches apart which pursue their way about the waist.

The smartest possible hat for a little girl is a small affair with a rounded crown and the narrowest kind of a brim. It might well be called a stepping stone between the bonnet and the hat.

Socks and flat little single strap slippers are the smartest footwear for children. Patent leather slippers for "best" and gull leather or white buckskin for their energetic hours of play.

The Buckled Foot of Fashion

Nowadays one of the first dictates of fashion is becomingness, so it is sometimes hard to lay down any hard and fast rule about what "they" will wear and what "they" will not wear. The wise woman adapts the style to her type and gives little individual variations which make our costumes so much more interesting.

So if one should say that every slipper must have a buckle, the next day one might see the smartest of slippers quite unadorned. However, if any rule could be laid down with absolute finality, it would be that slippers must be buckled.

We dress so much more artistically nowadays—particularly in regard to our footwear. A smart frock is never really charming unless everything else goes with it. So in the clever choosing of our footwear we change a gown into a complete costume.

For Evening Wear

The most elaborate and strikingly beautiful silk brocades are the power materials for the evening slipper. And the effect of these various-colored, rich-looking slippers below a simply cut frock is really unusual. Many shades are to be seen mingling in each slipper, but the predominating tone matches or, at an elite, harmonizes with the frock. Gold or silver kid frequently forms the heels and the trimming of these slippers, but as often as not the slipper is entirely of the brocade.

However popular these slippers may be, gold or silver cloth, either plain or brocaded is still seen to fashion the slippers for many of the smartest.

As for the put of the evening slipper, your choice is practically unlimited. Some have tiny straps which seem to almost wind themselves about the ankle, while the plain slipper is very new.

Buckles of Beauty

The plain slipper relies entirely upon an elaborate crystal buckle for its adornment. And so magnificent and so large are these buckles that it needs no more. And large as they are, the newest thought is to have them a fitted or quilted tone and of the material. One slipper even had such a tongue composed of tiny colored buckles.

The buckle for the strap slipper is much smaller and set on the strap just at the top of the instep. Another way is to have the buckle placed at the fastening. But one thing is certain, whatever style the slipper may be, the heel is sure to be very high.

Afternoon Slippers

The smartest afternoon slippers first make one think that the toe is of patent leather. After that, countless variations of style are offered them. They may be all of patent leather, but probably they will have bits of some colored suede—usually some shade of tan or gray. When these colors are chosen to harmonize with the frock, the result is an extremely smart costume. The cut steel buckle is the one which is used with these and, in fact, all afternoon slippers.

The all-suede slipper, while not the newest, is still in very good style. Sometimes they yield to the vogue of patent leather by having a patent leather heel and binding next to the sole. Or perhaps the patent leather will be found as a saddle strap.

For Street Wear

For walking and for wear with a street frock, the low-heeled strap slipper of a combination of suede and black leather helps to make a charming costume. One model which is very good is of suede with black leather toes and heels and a black leather strap holds close to the foot a large tongue of suede. Of course, if you choose a low-heeled walking oxford you will make no mistakes—particularly if that oxford be of a suede and leather combination.

For the soft, shimmering frock of some late summer afternoon, the dainty white slipper of kid, buckskin or linen is the appropriate finish. When these afternoon slippers have straps they are tied now and then in some bright colored knot.

With the soft costume the buckskin oxford with a leather saddle strap will be most frequently seen.

Wrappy Silk Coats in Novelty Crepe Weaves

By MARY BROOKS PICKEN

WRAPPY coats of silk, especially in the novelty of crepe weaves, seem especially appropriate for summer or afternoon wear as they are suggestive of elegance without a great deal of weight. Kashia cloth is also appropriate and especially desirable for early spring wear.

This lovely model is of brown Canton crepe embroidered in tones of tan and brown, the thread being wool and fleecy, touched on to give a flat, smooth effect. The simplicity of the collar and sleeves is characteristic of the new coat styles. If a serviceable coat is desired, the embroidery may be omitted and plain cloth used with a plain or decorative lining.

Hand-dyed crepe in smart, mottled pattern is used to drape the side crown of this medium-sized poke of tan felt.

Austrian Archduke Would Renounce His House to Gain Lands

(By the Associated Press)
PRAGUE.—To retain possession of valuable property, mines and factories, in Silesia, Frederick, at one time an Archduke of Austria, was ready to renounce his relationship to the house of Hapsburg. He pleaded in the courts of Czechoslovakia to be classed as a commoner, but the judges ruled otherwise and, under the decision that all properties of the Hapsburgs were to be confiscated, he has lost all his holdings without a cent of compensation.

Frederick is an uncle of the late Austrian emperor, Charles. He exerted, in the old days, a measurable influence in the family which dominated central European politics for the last seven centuries.

Knife-Plaited Frock of Old Blue Crepe de Chine

By MARY BROOKS PICKEN

THE straight lines of the twelve-year-old harmonize perfectly with the simple dress illustrated. The dress, cut in one piece, as it is, and knife plaited, provides for fullness. This is held in place by an interesting belt with side ties to break the line and shorten the figure.

Many frocks for young girls are shown without sleeves. This model allows for a dainty lace sleeve, if desired, and makes possible its omission with no inconvenience.

JEWELRY HELPS TO BRING OUT LINES OF DRESS BEAUTY

As the coiffure follows the fashion of the frock and shows more and more artful simplicity, the bandeaux become more elaborate. Just as many gowns seem but a scarcely becoming background to the chains, bracelets, buckles and earrings which are the strikingly vivid notes of the smart costume, so the simple coiffure allows the bandeau to display its full splendor.

Particularly now are the broad gold or silver bands, many of them intricately woven and rising to becoming little peak over the forehead. Others are gorgeously trimmed with pearls or flowers which wend their fascinating way across the head and fall in two clusters over the ears. Less extreme, but quite as lovely, are the narrow bandeaux of silver leaves or tiny ostrich strand flowers in delicate shades to match the frock. For the woman who is a little older, the constructive bandeau of jet gives a most becoming dignity.

Fashionable Types or Earrings
And almost as necessary to the complete costume are the earrings. In fact, unless the bandeau has clusters over the ears, earrings are usually seen with them. And impossible as it may sound, they are growing longer and more elaborate than ever. Stones of every imaginable color and with a strange barbaric charm about them vie with onyx and the clear beauty of crystal for greatest popularity. And fashioned of gold are some Baccante-like clusters of grapes. Those countless little fine gold chains, sometimes set with pearls, which are often seen dangling from the ear of the woman of fashion, have grown so long that they actually sweep her shoulder.

As for the new necklace, many stone never heard of are to be found of which are worn with matching earrings, every color and every stone in them in daring and unusual combinations. In reality it is in her chains and necklaces, this season that a woman expresses individuality. They give a dash of color and a charming sophistication to the simplicity of the frock. Jade is as smart as ever, but crystal and onyx are the newest fad of Paris.

Bracelets are the Yoges
Naturally this year when jewelry and novelty jewelry is all-important, bracelets are quite the vogue. The upper arm bracelet has always been beautiful, but it is particularly becoming with sleeveless frocks. Some of them are of wide carved dark shell, to accentuate the white loveliness of an arm while others are of many strands of lustrous pearls. And about the wrist are many bracelets of single slender strands, perhaps of pearls, lapis, onyx, amethyst—or any becoming, colorful stone. Sometimes on a slim wrist you will see a narrow black cord ending in pendants which match the earrings.

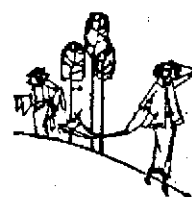

But whichever way your particular fancy may lead you, one thing is certain—novelty jewelry of some sort must add its quaint touch to our costume.

PAULS VALLEY—Fifty per cent reduction of a flock of 160 white leghorn hens on the farm of Mark Ashurst here, increased the percentage of layers from 20 to 75 per cent and increased the number of eggs laid by 25 per cent, according to A. P. Burge, Garvin county agricultural agent. Before the culling, he added, 150 hens produced an average of thirty eggs daily while now 80 hens produce more than forty eggs daily.

BONES OF HEROES TO BE DISTURBED

Burial Grounds for Heroes of Revolution to be Changed.

TUCKAHOE, N. Y.—Whitened bones of 195 American heroes of the Revolution, unearthed recently in a sandy trench in the "Y" of the old state cross-roads near here, are to be removed to a memorial plot on the highest knoll in Tucka-hoe Hills, to rest under a monument inscribed with the history of their last battle.

One of the 195 already has been taken from the trench and entombed as the "Unknown Soldier of the Revolution" beneath the floor of the Tucka-hoe Village Hall. He was placed in the tomb on the 191st anniversary of the birth of his commander-in-chief, George Washington, after exercises similar to those of the "Unknown" of the World War, at Arlington Cemetery, were held by the townsfolk.

Village officials have started a fund to purchase the plot of ground in which the 195 patriots, including the "Unknown" entombed February 25, will be reburied next Washington's birthday. They plan also to erect a granite shaft over the graves and it will be unveiled the day of reburial.

This little village of hills and dales which lies some 20 miles from the heart of New York City, was a grim slaying ground between the Rebel and British forces during the Revolution. General Washington maintained a temporary headquarters in the old inn at the crossroads. The inn still stands.

Across the road from it, and at the very point of the crossroads, is a spring. Rising back of the spring is a hill some 200 feet high, and around the hill winds the road.

Village historians say that a party of American irregulars, returning from a foraging expedition into the hills, stopped at the inn to rest and eat. General Washington had been at the inn only several days before.

A heavy force of British regulars surrounded the inn and began an advance upon it. Their movement being protected by several pieces of small artillery on the hill behind the spring. The commander of the American outfit, realizing that he had been caught, walked from the inn carrying a white flag and offered it is recorded, to surrender.

This offer, the town history says, was refused, whereupon the American shot the British officer dead and was himself killed. The British then fired on the Americans, and being greatly superior in numbers, decisively defeated them, killing 195.

A few of the Americans escaped. Their dead comrades were stripped of most of their clothing and left where they fell. News of the attack reached General Washington and he sent reinforcements for the irregulars, but they arrived too late.

They urged the 195 patriots in a long sandy trench across the road from the inn, placing their feet toward the east and their arms at their sides, as all fallen warriors are buried. A huge boulder was rolled over the trench to mark the spot.

The trench was discovered by a contractor, excavating for a residence. A few bits of revolutionary army equipment, enough for their identification as Americans, were found by the bones of one was found in ivory case, and inside it, a slightly faded miniature of a beautiful woman.

With the coming of spring what woman does not feel a longing for exquisitely lovely colors after the somber winter ones? The softening air and the first sunny days suggest the glorious colorings of summer. So how Dame Fashion, ever capricious and inconstant, selects new shades for her favorites. And one of the first of these shades is green—Lanvin green. Even the name has an enchanting sound. The color is that soft, delicate green like fresh, unopened grass. How exquisitely refreshing it will be on the hot days to come. Green, suggesting as it does, fresh growing things and the soft shadows of trees, makes you feel and look deliciously cool. And still another favorite is Madeleine rose. It is an old saying that a woman in love longs for a rose-colored gown and fresh violets. Perhaps instinctively she knows how flattering is this delicately warm shade. But this summer when a riot of color is all the rage, all the light, bright shades are quite in vogue.

But these colors, instead of being in the flat tones which have predominated for so many months, are found in the most intricate and unusual designs on a neutral background. In fact, this passion for the allover design, is the most distinctive characteristic of the season. Almost every fabric used is printed, beaded or embroidered over every seemingly available inch of its surface.

Long Lines Newest
The gracefully becoming, long lines are still the newest—yet they are not the same, for in some subtle way we seem to grow cleverer in our ability to drape them with more artistic simplicity. Oftentimes the newer frocks are caught into an elaborate buckle on the left hip—buckles of strangely wrought solid or clear, gleaming crystal or richly colored stones. At other times they are caught into knots of the material, forming a little draping on that side.

Simplicity in Frocks
An evening frock of the approved Greek simplicity which is most becoming to the slender figure has a deep "V" neck in front and back, the back hangs straight but both the back and front are draped into a huge, pear-shaped ornament on the left hip. From this ornament hang long strands of pearls which almost reach the ground. Underneath this ornament the skirt opens to show the gleaming silver of an underskirt. It is in clever ways like this that the long, straight lines are made possible for dancing or walking without the graceless, pinching step of the too tight skirt.

Modes of Afternoon Frocks
It is on the glorious sunshiny days of summer when one watches the sunlight sparkling on the waves and the yellow sands or spends a deliciously lazy afternoon in the cool shadows of the country club park, that the season shows her loveliest interpretations of the mode for afternoon frocks. It is on just such an occasion that one will be permitted to see a beautiful little geometric frock, made quite simply with a light blouse and a little draping at the side, where the material falls in a point just below the hem line. But it will owe its charm to the myriad beads which gleam and glisten on its soft, dull surface. Perhaps this frock will be sleeveless, for the sleeveless afternoon frock is quite the rage, but it will be just as much in fashion if its whimsical wearer happens to prefer a little short, tight sleeve or one of those wing-like extensions which have recently been serving as sleeves.

Silk Crepe Frocks Shown
If one wanders further on such a day, one is certain to meet one of those gaily patterned silk crepe frocks. It is in these frocks that the mode fully expresses its present love of color in strange interwoven designs. These allover patterns are on a white or neutral background, but the brightest, gayest colors lend their decorative touch to the intricate traceries of the design.

Voile for Sultry Weather
The cool freshness of voile is so alluring on sultry days, so if you choose you can express the mode charmingly in a frock of voile quite as brilliantly figured as the silk ones. Other dainty little frocks achieve this same effect by having the figures embroidered.

It is not in the least surprising that the coat frock is a very great favorite again, for it would be difficult to conceive of anything either more stunning or more practical. However, they have certain marked differences from the coat frocks we wore last year.

Now and again one sees a slender little miss with a graceful circular skirt, but more often the skirt is straight with first a circular flare introduced into it. One charming coat frock of serge has a circular flare of crepe set in at the closing of the frock. This not only smart, but extremely practical as it gives freedom for walking without destroying the straight one-piece effect. The wide rever which covers almost the entire front of the waist is of this same crepe.

Unusual and Varied Sleeve.

But doubtless the most cleverly varied and unusual part of the afternoon frock is its sleeves. The long, tight sleeve is the greatest favorite of the coat frock. But it must never be a plain, tight sleeve. Far from it. Over some long, slender hand will fall a circular cuff reaching to the knuckles. Or in a gay cavalier fashion this circular cuff will be turned back forming a gauntlet. Then another tight sleeve admiring this gauntlet fashion will assume three gauntlets whose combined efforts almost reach the elbow. Or a favored way is to have three circular flares turned down, the top one a few inches below the elbow and the lowest one falling over the hand. The sleeve of the satin or chiffon frock may start out to be long and tight, but at the elbow it is very apt to change its mind and end by being full and flowing, quite as fashionable, however, it may be a full flowing sleeve straight from the shoulder.

The three-piece suit is still in high favor for spring. It is such a convenient and becoming costume, particularly for afternoon, when one drops into a restaurant for a tea or goes calling. The lovely blouses which peep forth as one opens the jacket make really a very dressy costume, appropriate for almost any and every function of the afternoon.

An almost limitless choice is offered your fancy when you are choosing the blouses for one of these suits. If your taste inclines to the Oriental, a blouse of Persian patterned silk will suit the mode as well as your personality. Of course it will be long waisted, cut to fit snugly about the hips or gathered into a tightly fitted band.

Now and again a button cleverly placed will hold the jacket so snugly about the hips that it has a tendency toward a slight blouse or perhaps it would be quite frankly a little blouse and gathered into a tight band at the hips. With these jackets the line of the skirt is straight. There may be a little draping at one side, but not a circular flare.

Variations in these Suits
As often as not the three-piece suit consists of a dress instead of a skirt and a costume blouse.

Whether you go or whether you motor or whether you are just an interested spectator on the sidelines of sports, of course, you are wearing sports clothes. For the sports costume, which year by year has been becoming more and more popular, has reached the topnotch of fashion and is just the thing to be worn almost every hour of the day. It may be because we are more keen for sports, it may be because we are more keen for the ever-present reason for its youthful dash and smartness. It is so unusually becoming to every age and type.

Jaquette a Sport Favorite

The Jaquette or overblouse which was worn so much last season is here in a new form for sports. Fashioned of various novelty cotton materials all vividly figured, or of colorful ratine, they bid fair to be in high favor for morning on the links.

Among the newest sweaters, for the women actively engaged in sports are rather mannish ones. Many of these are checked in a tiny diamond shape pattern with a plain border or sometimes with plain sleeves also.

Of course, the high round-neck sweater is still very good, and even more daintily original are the strange designs which encircle it. In addition to the American Indian designs there are new and even more gorgeously elaborate figures. The slip-on sweaters also show the allover diamond-shape checks. But whatever kind of a sweater you choose one thing is certain—if you are slim it must be beltless.

Finely Pleated Kasha Cloth
There is a little grace about finely pleated Kasha cloth which makes it particularly suitable for our more active hours. In white, gray or a soft tan, worn with vividly patterned blouses or sweaters, it makes a costume which will be seen frequently at the most fashionable country clubs. And as beautifully lined as the rainbow are the figured silk crepe skirts, fashion's latest creation. Of course, these are particularly lovely with the single tone blouses. The new wool or silk-and-wool skirts are severely distinguished by unusual button hole loops and pockets, and now and then drawn work.

Handkerchief Completes Wardrobe

But no mention of the sports costume is even half begun until one has heard all about the handkerchief—for in all verity it has seized the wardrobe. The more gaudily colored these silk handkerchiefs—for that is the handkerchief's newest form—the smarter they are. Some are tied loosely about the neck in true cowboy fashion with the knot in front or on the shoulder. Others deftly knotted about the hips form a fascinating girdle for a longwaisted frock.

For Trim Ankle

The bewildering array of countless styles which are placed before us in such profusion nowadays make it possible for a woman to use so much more artistic imagination in expressing her personality as well as her taste. And of these greatly varied offerings, hosiery is far from being the least.

The plain black silk stocking

which was worn for so long by the smartly dressed woman is scarcely ever seen nowadays. Chiffon with its fine, sheer beauty is seen whenever a plain stocking is worn, and strange as it may sound, if you wish black do not buy black. The clever woman chooses gunmetal. This shade looks black when it is worn, but it makes the hose much more expensively fine. And with a black frock and shoes, the effect is wholly charming. But black is the only frock with which black hose are worn. If your frock be any shade of gray or tan, the stockings should match it even when they are worn with black shoes. If your shoes are of colored suede or have suede inserts, of course, the hose must match the shoes. With a very dark dress it is far better to have the hose of a lighter shade than the frock. And these colored hose are quite correct with a black street frock. For the ideal of the mode is still the fawn colored stocking. For dressier wear the lace clock is quite the thing in chiffon, though the plain chiffon hose are appropriate at all times.

For Sport Wear

For sports wear the silk have given way to the imported English silk and wool stockings. They are much more practical for summer than the all wool and being much softer, many women find them far more comfortable.

And in such fascinating colors can these hose be found, that our ankles are going to be more charmingly clad than ever. These colors offer ample opportunity to have our hose match either our sweaters or our sport frocks. For the fad for the matching of hose is carried into the world of sports.

But if you do not choose to wear these gay colors, you will look perfectly stunning if you pick out those with large diagonal checks of all shades of gray or tan. At times these silk and wool hose are cloaked or else they have drop-stitch stripes. Seldom are they perfectly plain.

Of course, with the silk sports frock or sports skirts the silk hose must be worn either in white, light gray or fawn, with matching shoes. But on the golf links or tennis court, wool is the thing.

Men Blossom out in new Spring Styles

Simplification seems to rule the men's clothing industry—simplification in style in fabric and in pattern. Conservation, with few variations, appears to have the call this spring and summer.

The last models, which made such a harrish last year, and which were strong in some sections of the country, but were rejected in other parts, apparently passed the height of popularity and now are on the down grade. While a few makers, who were successful in putting out the jazz outfit, will continue along these lines, the better manufacturers have turned down these styles almost completely.

There will, however, be shown a variety of these freakish styles, but the production is so small that it is almost insignificant. No doubt the death knell has been rung.

Three Variations Noted

Two distinct variations—possibly three—will be noted in the new styles for spring men. The ultra dressy will wear very fitted models. High waist high collar, that is, a short collar, high lapel, high chest effect, slim waist, long vent and long opening skirts are the principal features. The effect of the longer skirt makes the coat appear longer, which is not the case, as the length is about the average.

More models also will be a noteworthy characteristic on clothes of this type. Some coats are made with a high outside cash pocket. There will be both notch and peak lapels but the lapels will be shorter, much shorter than in past seasons. Two and three buttons will be used.

College Type of Clothes

Next comes the college type of clothes, which will be of softer construction than heretofore, with bow collars, short lapels, single breasted rounding fronts, three and four button coats, worn buttoned. The three-button coat seems to have the call.

This coat is of the same dimension as the four, except that the buttons are spaced wider. Vests are cut straight across the bottom and the trousers also are cut straight, that is, the same size at both knee and bottom and worn with cuffs.

The third style idea concerns the group known as "regular" young men's models. The coats are semi-fitted, with two and three buttons, both single and double breasted. The rope shoulders will be a prominent feature of these clothes. The vest to these suits will also show a tendency to be cut a little lower at the opening and straighter at the bottom.

Trousers Cut Straight

Such suits will also display trousers cut straight. Some, however, those from the best makers, are regular in shape, but there is an outlier on both inside and outside seams permitting alteration, in the event the customer wants them wider from the knee down.

The sport styles, which came in stronger than ever last year, promise to continue in favor with good dressers, particularly the four-piece suits. Such suits are adaptable for both business and sport wear. The business man may wear the suit to the office and can change to knickerbockers at the golf club, if he so desires.

Belts and Pleats Again

Half and three-quarter belts are winning the greatest vote, while spring pleats, like those worn in regular suit suits, also are favored by a certain clientele. There are many variations of the sport styles and all of them have a following. Patch pockets and plain pockets will be seen on the majority of the suits, while the crescent pocket, which had quite a play several years ago is regarded as a back number.

In patterns, stripes have become almost as staple as the Chesterfield is in the present family. Stripes in shades of blue, oxfords and grays will be more noticeable than ever. That fact that most of the fabrics in which stripes appear are light in weight makes clothes made of such fabrics wearable almost twelve months of the year, and hence there is an added reason for their success.

Checks to Have Following

Checks, which came into vogue several years ago with a rush, will have a large following, and many of these patterns will be found among the sport suits as well as among the more conservative styles, rampland plaid, herringbones in blue, brown and gray stripes, Glen Plaid, Tartan checks and overplaid will command a large following.

Despite the fact that diamond weaves were shown more than ever last season, makers are coming forth with another selection of them this year in the hope of forcing popularity. It is rather questionable whether men will see such patterns as the thing for spring.

Palm Beach in Lead

Palm Beach promises to lead the procession in midsummer fabrics, as in other years. The cheapness of such material, together with improved styles has helped not only this fabric across with greater force than ever, but a time when Palm Beach cloth was on the wane, the better makers secured this fabric, put their skill and ingenuity to work and turned out unusually fine clothes.

The increasing vogue of ascending the heavier women suits for something light and airy has also helped other cool-weather fabrics. Among them are mohairs, hems, spuns, lightweight flannels, crases, rich pongees, shantung, together with a long list of fabrics possessing specially coined names.

The topcoat for spring will show a leaning toward the box of full drapes, with set-in sleeves. Then, too, the topcoat with the raglan shoulders, forty-four inches long, with belt all around also will win great favor. The first coat mentioned will be shown in both button through and fly front. The third group consists of the always present Chesterfield.

In raincoats, the popular gabardine leads the field, in plain or belted models.

CHICAGO SEES NO CHANGE IN WINTER TEMPERATURE

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO, March 17.—Winter in Chicago up to March 1 was the exact normal winter average for the city, 27.5 degrees, determined by observations over a fifty year period according to Henry J. Cox, federal meteorologist, December was slightly below normal, January considerably above, and February considerably below.

Chicago has had but five days with temperature below zero, one in December and four in February, the records show. The lowest was eight below on February 4.

Precipitation was considerably below normal, and snow fall was but 14.8 inches, compared with a normal of 26.1 inches.

WHIPPING POSTS REVIVED TO CURB WIFE BEATERS

(By the Associated Press)

BUFFALO.—The whipping post as a restraining influence on wife-beaters is favored by the probation officers of this city. Their opinion was expressed during the hearing recently of an exceptionally brutal case. Serious cases of wife-beating in which the women carried the marks for days or weeks average about 50 a year in this city, and there are frequent "repeaters."

"Flogging is the only remedy for these brutes," says William T. Glavin, chief probation officer. The last is being used in Delaware and Canada, and I would like to see it adopted in New York."

Bad whiskey figured in most recent cases of wife-beating, the court records show.

Mexico Already Turning Thoughts Toward Future Election; Revolution off

(By the Associated Press)

MEXICO CITY.—Assuming that Mexico will be without revolution during the next 22 months, a new president of the republic will be elected by popular vote in September, 1924. But already there are political murmurings, possible candidates are being discussed, and at least one ambitious individual has announced his candidacy.

Party lines have never been tightly drawn in Mexico and political alliances are made and unmade overnight as the exigencies of the occasion demand. Therefore, it is difficult to say at present just what well defined groups will be in the field to contest for high national honors next year.

Among political observers it is considered an undoubted fact that President Obregon, Secretary of Interior Calles, and Secretary of Treasury de la Huerta will stand as a unit in the next election. President Obregon is barred by an article of the constitution from contesting for reelection. Secretary Calles, considered by many as his logical successor, will doubtless enter the race unless his health, which of late has given him much concern, forces him to abandon politics altogether. In the event that Secretary Calles is eliminated it is believed that Secretary de la Huerta former provisional president, will be the administration choice runs as a co-president, which party now claims President Obregon as a member, or as an independent depends entirely on politics as they pertain at the time the active campaign opens.

At any rate the Cooperistas will enter a man in the race, and if an alliance with the administration is not made it is considered quite possible that Jorge Prieto Laurens, youthful leader of the party at present a federal deputy and the mayor of Mexico City, will be the party choice. Roque Gonzales Garza, a former president, is also talked of in this connection. Senor Laurens' youth may prove a barrier, but constitutional prohibitions have been winked at before when political expediency was urgent.

It is a foregone conclusion that the Conservatives, united either under one party or campaigning as several groups, will be represented in the race. The Catholic Party at the last election supported Alfredo Robles Domínguez, who in the old days acted as a sort of liaison officer between the Porfirio Diaz and the Francisco Madero groups. He connected with small idea of election and polled but a few votes. But the Catholics are growing in power, and the Filippi expulsion incident has served to unite them against the administration, especially against Secretary Calles. Domínguez may be their standard bearer but many predict the Catholics will ally themselves with the Fascists who as yet have not revealed their sentiments for president.

A review of possible conservative material finds these names always mentioned:

Francisco Leon de la Barra, former president and now living in France. Because of his present happy connection with the French government it is not believed he would even allow his name to be considered.

Alberto Garcia Granados, former army general under President Diaz, now living in the United States.

Mmanuel Calero, former ambassador at Washington and now in the United States.

Pedro Lascarrain, former president and now living quietly in Mexico City.

Carlos D. Zetina, a federal senator and a prominent merchant of Mexico City.

There are others, now residents of the United States, who also figure in the speculation. General Manuel Pelaez, General Pablo Gonzales and General Estoban Canin, former governor of Lower California, are among the most prominent.

And then there are others who are not definitely allied with any group, but who may be requisitioned as candidates. There is Roberto V. Pesquera, who represented the Obregon government at Washington during the early stages of the recognition negotiations. Senor Pesquera is close to the present government and is known as a broad gauge man who might fit in well to break the recognition deadlock. There is also Eduardo Humbido, grand nephew of Emperor Maximilian of Mexico. He is a sound business man, sane in his political convictions, allied with no particular group, and well thought of by all here. He also has a certain standing in the United States due to his position as counselor to Secretary de la Huerta during the debt negotiations last summer. Felix F. Palavicini, editor of El Universal, also has been mentioned as a possible civilian candidate as opposed to the military.

Emeterio de la Garza already has formally announced himself from Havana as a presidential candidate, saying that Mexico needs a Messianic and that he proposes to be cast in that role. His antecedents, however, are not such as to lend seriousness to his announcement. It is also assumed that Senor Miranda y Zúñiga, perennial candidate, who has contested in every election since the early days of the Diaz regime, will again enter himself.

Issues and platforms have never intruded much in Mexican politics, where the contest is largely personal. In a general way, relations with the United States will figure in party declarations, with constitutional reforms, particularly in regard to Article 27 and the agrarian law, as points of discussion.

HABERDASHERY ON THE CALENDAR FOR SPRING

While there is a tendency to slightly higher prices for men's haberdashery this spring, the advance is partially offset by better quality merchandise. Prices have reached the point of stabilization and the old fluctuations of war days and post-war days are a thing of the past.

During the halcyon days the cost of men's accessories was just about twice that of today. The $25 shirt, for example, may be purchased for $12 or $13. Neckwear marked at $3 is now down to $1.50 and the range of prices is correspondingly lowered throughout.

White Silk Shirts Popular
While the silk shirt has been making desperate efforts to regain its war-day popularity, the march of progress has been quite slow in the last two years. The white silk shirt will lead the field, of course, but there is a tendency for plain colored silks to come back in some of the more durable weaves. Among them are baby broadcloth and jerseys. Pleated effects also promise to have a large call.

Macraes, oxford cloth and the better grades of cotton shirts, particularly the English broadcloths, will be worn extensively. While the prices are a shade higher than a year ago, the workmanship is so improved that it compares on the custom-tailored variety.

Good Selection of Fiber Silks
There always will be a demand for the better fiber silk shirts, largely due to the fact that they offer a selection that good dressers like—at prices that do not tax one's income.

The collar-attached shirt which reached the height of popularity last year will go ahead with greater advancement than ever, if the prediction of makers is correct. In this special line there is a greater variety than ever, giving the customer a wider scope of selection. And one of the pleasing features is the fact that the workmanship has improved wonderfully—truly making this a gentleman's shirt.

Then, too, there will be shown more shirts with two button cuff bands, although the French cuff still leads the procession. Flannel shirts will have quite a following, especially among those dressers who prefer the soft sort of flannel coming from England and France.

Gayer Effects in Neckwear
In neckwear the subdued color effects of somber winter will give way to the varicolored selection that usually blossoms forth in the spring. Silks from foreign fields—England, France, Switzerland and the far eastern countries—have flooded the market, but they are made up in the American styles and fashions. Among some of the shapes are the narrow cravats, adapted for the summer collars which have become the popular vogue for warmer weather wear.

Because of their serviceability and durability, grenadines and knitted ties will be worn with greater frequency than ever. Many interesting and novel effects have been produced, giving the wearer a variety in selection that has never been offered before.

Matching some of the suit patterns will be tweed effects, which promises to "go across" with great demand. Foreign foulards also will come to the front stronger than ever.

Few Changes in Hosiery
Because of the limitations, hosiery will undergo few changes this year. Good silks, with clocks and other novel designs, particularly the full-fashioned selection, will be as popular as ever. For early spring casimere, camel's hair and imported worsteds will get the big play. Naturally there will be a good selection of silk accoutrements and embroidered effects, but the showing promises to be only normal. As for colors the shades and tones of each will be about the same as last season.

Same Story for Gloves
There have been very few changes made in glove styles and colors in the last few years and nothing novel is expected to be displayed this season. Cape, Arabian mocha, suede, buck and chamois in standard or off shades will furnish the greatest selection. Spear or embroidered backs are about the only ornamental features that will appear. The pearl button, however, is replacing the old time clasp.

The success of middy pajamas, otherwise known as the bachelor or buttonless pajamas, has been unusually tremendous. The ease with which men can slip into and out of such wearing apparel is one excellent reason. While colored effects and stripes had the call in past seasons, the tendency is toward plain colors or white. In silk pajamas the color scheme is prevalent, with frogs of contrasting tones.

Plain or pattern effects of madras, percales, crepes, chambrays, seersucker and fiber silk will be among the favorites in vogue.

Soft Collar is Favored
The non-wrinklable collar, now made by a number of concerns, have won the popular favor of many a good dresser and will blossom forth much greater than ever this spring. The two-ply hard collar with a slight roll, will be the chief competitor for popularity. In other men's accessories, such as underwear, hose, jewelry, handkerchiefs, walking sticks, etc., there have been no decided changes.

Legion Signs for Action

Program of Achievement Mapped Out for Members as Summer Objective.

With five years of peace as a period to rehabilitate from the turmoil of war, Ada Legionnaires have grown from a handful of veterans, who were willing for the burden of organization to fall on their shoulders, to a commanding body in the affairs of the community.

During the short years since the war, much has been accomplished by those who agreed to take up the struggle of the ante-bellum days. A complete program of action had been worked out and members of the Legion pledged to bear their part in affairs.

During the early days of the foundation of the Legion here little progress was experienced by those in charge, ex-service men in many instances taking the stand that they were through with anything military after their gruesome experience on the mud-splattered fronts of France.

Soon the life of civilian excitement grew monotonous to veterans, who were formerly in the midst of happenings and they began to lend their aid in the perfection of an organization to better the aims and principals of the ex-service man.

The Norman Howard post, American Legion, has grown gradually during the past four years and at the present time boasts of a membership of approximately 300 ex-service men, a representative number for the entire city population.

Today the Norman Howard post, American Legion stands as one of the largest fraternal orders of the city, with ties of fraternal interest greater than any order in the city. Today the Norman Howard Post, American Legion stands on the brink of their objective, a permanent home that will serve as a monument to the heroes who have answered the final call in the name of Pontotoc county.

Memorial Hall Appropriated
The Memorial Convention Hall marks the turning point in the affairs of the Legion. Plans for the future center around the completion of construction of that edifice, which is scheduled for late summer.

The fight for the Memorial Hall marked the first big success of the Legion and the first full note of appreciation of the people of Ada. All plans for the future bear a two-fold purpose, one for the promoting of interest for "Buddy" and a life of service to the betterment of civil conditions.

The Legion will lay the corner stone for their own beautiful memorial, officials of state Legion Headquarters will be here to bestow the Legion rituals in a fitting ceremony on Memorial Day, May 30.

Efforts of the local post will tend toward the attracting of the state Legionnaires here in their 1924 state convention after the completion of their memorial hall. Ada Legionnaires believe that state leaders will not deny this request for a proper dedication of their hall.

The Memorial Hall will be prepared for the 1924 convention and other conventions fostered by the city of Ada. The auditorium will be appropriately decorated. A large bronze Legion emblem will stand out over the opening of the hall, with a welcome to everyone to enter. Legion quarters will be furnished to the sum of $3,000 and will constitute one of the most expensive and spacious clubrooms of any post in the state.

Several entertainments and benefit affairs have been given of late and are under plans for the coming months to raise necessary funds for the furnishing of the Legion quarters. One of the most notable of Legion entertainments of late was the play at the McSwain theatre last Thursday night. This play "The Girl from Out Yonder" will be presented again the coming Thursday night at the McSwain. Several benefit shows at local theatres have been given under the auspices of the Legion. One benefit dance has been given this month and until recently fights have been given under the auspices of the Legion but under the benefit of the ELKS.

Other Events Sponsored
All boxing exhibitions will be staged by the local post, American Legion in the future and the post will assume active charge of the management of Archie Cooper, local boxer.

A novel cabaret dance will be staged here late in March by the Legion, which is destined to rival the success of "Gay Parade" of five years ago. Legionnaires will leave off no detail in affording Ada with the finest entertainment ever held at the City Hall.

Despite all plans for the future and the entertainment program outlined by officers of the Legion, a tendency on the part of members to forget to attend important meetings is a sad failing that must be remedied, according to Elbert Reed, post commander.

Commander Reed explains to "Buddy" that regular Legion meetings are enjoyable as well as beneficial and urges that a full attendance greet the efforts of post officers. Smokers, luncheons and little entertainments are held in connection with the meetings and afford those who attend with an enjoyable evening.

Legion Paper Published
Ada now boasts of the best post paper in the state in the "Ada Legionnaire," which recently made its appearance in behalf of the ex-

The latest effort of the local Legion post is in the organization of the Legion drum corp, another feature unknown to any other post in the state. The corp holds practice rehearsals on two nights each week. The purpose of the drum corps is purely to boost the local post, as well as the city of Ada as it has been proven that a drum corp is the most conspicuous means of making noise. The local post is planning to send the corps to the state and national convention.

ONE DEATH AND ONE INJURY IN SHOOTING AFFRAY

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 17.—Mrs. Robert Strate is dead and F. F. Tanner, proprietor of a shoe shop, is believed fatally injured as the result of a shooting affray in a bakery in a leading residential section of the city today. Police declared that Tanner had shot the woman and then himself.

Mrs. Strate was left in charge of the bakery a few minutes by the proprietor. Hearing shots a few minutes later the proprietor rushed in to find the woman dead and Tanner lying on the floor. Tanner was taken to a hospital where it was said he is not expected to live.

SWEET POTATO GROWERS TO CUT YEAR'S ACREAGE

I. T. Hoggatt, secretary of the Truck Growers association of Union Valley states that about 16 cars of sweet potatoes were grown in his community last year of which 10 have been shipped and two or three more will be shipped shortly. The crop was cut short last year by the drought.

Mr. Hoggatt states that through marketing co-operatively in car lots the growers have done much better than would otherwise have been possible, but the price has been discouragingly low throughout the season and as a consequence the acreage will probably be reduced somewhat for the coming season.

Mr. Hoggatt said that from the acreage in Irish potatoes he judges that two or three cars will be raised.

This association is the first of its kind to be organized in the county. It has been in operation for four years and the members are sticking close to it.

VETS HOSPITAL TO BE SPACIOUS

Plans Drawn Up for Building of New Hospital for Veterans.

(By the Associated Press)
BATTLE CREEK, Mich., March 17.—Sixty pounds of blueprints in the safe of the chamber of commerce here tell the story of the plan of the federal government to start early construction of a military and a half dollar hospital for former service men suffering from nervous and mental diseases. On the open spaces west of here where Camp Custer sprang into a great cantonment, the hospital, with its thirty buildings, will spread over 500 acres. It is one of five for which congress appropriated $18,000,000. The hospital building program is under the direction of the Veterans' Bureau.

Two miles east of the government hospital site is located the American Legion Roosevelt hospital for the care of tubercular former service men, with a capacity of 100 patients. The Veterans' Bureau hospital will have facilities for the treatment of 500 patients.

The government hospital unit will be built around what the blueprints call the "main building"—a commodious two-story structure, which, with general wards on one side and wards for "disturbed" patients on the other. Directors of fees, rooms for various officers, dining rooms, operating rooms, electrotherapy, electrocardiograph, autopsy and dental rooms are in this building, as well as quarters for specialistic treatment and minor surgery.

At the west end of the hospital group will be located the cottage for tubercular patients, equipped with sleeping porches and the most modern methods of treating this disease.

The recreation building will contain an auditorium to seat 400 persons, with a stage and projection room for motion pictures. Card and billiard rooms will open off the main lobby.

There is a group of buildings for "continued treatment" cases, containing large day rooms on the first floor with wards above. Three separate buildings will provide accommodations for nurses, female attendants and male attendants. There will be separate structures for the vocational training shops, garage and repair shops.

By the use of hydrofluoric acid two men can now polish as much cut glass as 40 could before the new method was used.
